

Contents

Preface to the Second Edition	vii
Preface to the First Edition	viii
Introduction	x
PART I THE CRITERIA FOR LEGITIMACY
1 Towards a Social-scientific Concept of Legitimacy	3
The different dimensions of legitimacy	15
The significance of legitimacy	25
Conclusion: a social or political concept?	37
2 Power and Its Need of Legitimation	42
The concept of power	43
The social organisation of power	46
Power and legitimacy	56
3 The Normative Structure of Legitimacy	64
Legitimacy derived from rules	64
Legitimacy as justifiability of rules	69
Legitimacy through expressed consent	90
Conclusion	97
4 The Social Construction of Legitimacy	100
PART II LEGITIMACY IN THE MODERN STATE
5 Dimensions of State Legitimacy	117
The elusiveness of legality	121
Constitutional rules and their justification	126

Modes of popular consent	150
Conclusion	158
6 Crisis Tendencies of Political Systems	161
Liberal democracy	163
Liberal democracy in developing countries	171
The communist model	179
Types of Islamic state	191
7 Modes of Non-legitimate Power	205
Revolutions and legitimacy	213
Revolutionary regimes and relegitimation	221
Coups d'état and military regimes	228
Conclusion: the dilemmas of political legitimacy	237
8 Legitimacy in Political Science and Political Philosophy	243
PART III LEGITIMACY IN THE TWENTY-FIRST CENTURY
9 Legitimacy within the State	253
Operationalising the concept of legitimacy	254
Compliance with law enforcement agencies	256
The comparative legitimacy of states	259
The role of consent in political legitimacy	266
10 Legitimacy beyond the State	269
Inter-governmental institutions and their legitimacy	269
Legitimacy issues in international NGOs	274
Contested legitimacy in the European Union	279
Legitimacy crisis in the international financial sector	287
Conclusion	292
Bibliography	295
Index	305