

Contents

Preface	ix
Introduction: Styles of Civil Disobedience	1

PART ONE: DISSEMINATING THE SUBJECT

1. Values and Deconstructions	31
Heidegger, Habermas, and the Subject of Values	35
De-Nominations: From Marx to Derrida	48
Toward an Other Politics	73
2. Paul de Man: Being in Question	81
Literature/Aporia/History	83
The Voice of Criticism	96
3. Freud and the Death of Autobiography	108
Psychoanalysis and the Address of Speculation	109
Cultural History as Family Romance	121
Lost in the Funhouse	128

PART TWO: AMERICAN LETTERS

4. Economy and Literary History, or Marx and Freud in Concord	141
Reification and Logocentrism	142
From Emerson's Nature to Gatsby's Shirts	153
5. Poe: Delivering the Male	170
Sublimated Differences: Us/Her	174
Visionary Negations of the I	183
Poetic Violence	193
Purloined Power	198

6. Henry Adams: Outlaw Virgin	205
The Old Historicism	207
The Self, the Truth, the Woman	211
Everybody's Autobiography	219
Miracles for Criminals	227
7. American Literature and the New Historicism:
The Example of Frederick Douglass	236
Empowering History	241
Historicizing American Criticism	247
Poststructuralism and the African-American Text	254
The Rhetoric of the Historical Agent	262
8. Hegel and the Dialectics of American Literary
Historiography: From Parrington to Trilling and Beyond	277
A Nation of Contradictory Spirits	279
The Liberal Mind	286
Opposing Selves	300
9. The Subject of Pedagogy: Lessons in Psychoanalysis
and Politics	313
Dis-Locutions of Mastery	316
Instructional Positions	321
The Fathers Know	325
Reading in Black and White	330
Index	339