

LASZLO LADANY

Law and Legality
in China

The Testament of a China-watcher

EDITED BY MARIE-LUISE NÄTH
WITH A PREFACE AND CONCLUDING CHAPTER BY
JÜRGEN DOMES AND MARIE-LUISE NÄTH

UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII PRESS
HONOLULU

CONTENTS

Preface by Jürgen Domes	page vii
Publisher's note	xii
Introduction	1
Chapters
1. Preliminary notions	5
What is China?	5
Attraction and repulsion	6
The country and the people	12
Chineseness	21
Abyss	30
2. China's ancient legal system and its end	33
Two systems	33
Sources and scope	35
Contents	36
Summary	43
The end	44
3. The Mao era: lawlessness	52
Mao and law	52
The start	55
Courts and judges	61
Ephemeral legal reforms	66
The 'sixties and 'seventies	70
4. After Mao	79
For legality	79
Criminal code	82
Legislative powers	89
Civil law	92
Lawyers	101
Theory of law, 1985-1989	103

5. Labour camps	111
Corrective labour	112
Labour education	115
Camps in the Teng era	118
Camps and economic construction	124
Life in the labour camps	124
6. Outside the camps: public security	132
Guarding the leaders	132
Guarding the nation	135
Heading for trouble	144
T'ienanmen	153
Future perspectives	156
Analytical prerequisites (by Jürgen Domes)	156
Projections (by Marie-Luise Näth)	165
Select bibliography	172
Name Index	175
Subject Index	177