

Donald R. Kelley

---

The Writing of History and the Study of Law

---

VARIORUM
1997

CONTENTS

Introduction	vii-viii
Acknowledgements	ix
PART ONE: EARLY MODERN HISTORY
I Humanism and History Renaissance Humanism: Its Sources, Forms and Legacy, ed. A. Rabil. Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 1988	236-270
II Tacitus Noster : The Germania in the Renaissance and Reformation Tacitus and the Tacitean Tradition, ed. T.J. Luce and A. Woodman. Princeton: Princeton University Press, 1993	152-167 185-200
III Johann Sleidan and the Origins of History as a Profession Journal of Modern History 52. Chicago, 1980	573-598
IV History as a Calling: The Case of La Popelinière Renaissance Studies in Honor of Hans Baron, ed. A. Molho and J.A. Tedeschi. Florence: G.C. Sansoni S.P.A., 1971	773-789
V Martyrs, Myths, and the Massacre: The Background of St Bartholomew American Historical Review 77, no. 5. Washington, 1972	1323-1342
VI History and the Encyclopedia The Shapes of Knowledge from the Renaissance to the Enlightenment, ed. D.R. Kelley and R.H. Popkin. Dordrecht: Kluwer Academic Publishers, 1991	7-22

PART TWO: MODERN HISTORY

- VII Ancient Verses on New Ideas: Legal Tradition and the French Historical School 319–338
History and Theory 26, no. 3. Middletown, CT, 1987
- VIII Mythistory in the Age of Ranke 3–20
Leopold von Ranke and the Shaping of the Historical Discipline, ed. G.G. Iggers and J.M. Powell. Syracuse: Syracuse University Press, 1989 181–185
- IX Robert Flint, Historian of Ideas 39–62
Storia della Storiografia 27. Turin, 1995
- X The Science of Anthropology: An Essay on the Very Old Marx 245–262
Journal of the History of Ideas 45. New Brunswick, NJ, 1984

PART THREE: HISTORY AND THE LAW

- XI “Second Nature”: The Idea of Custom in European Law, Society, and Culture 131–172
The Transmission of Culture in Early Modern Europe, ed. A. Grafton and A. Blair. Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 1990
- XII Civil Science in the Renaissance: The Problem of Interpretation 57–78
The Languages of Political Theory in Early-Modern Europe, ed. A. Pagden. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 1987
- XIII Jurisconsultus Perfectus: The Lawyer as Renaissance Man 84–102
Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes 51. London, 1988
- XIV Men of Law and the French Revolution 127–146
Politics, Ideology and the Law in Early Modern Europe, ed. A.E. Bakos. Rochester: University of Rochester Press, 1994
- Index 1–10