

A HISTORY OF THE EARLY ISLAMIC LAW OF PROPERTY

Reconstructing the Legal Development, 7th–9th Centuries

BY

HIROYUKI YANAGIHASHI

BRILL
LEIDEN · BOSTON
2004

CONTENTS

Acknowledgement	vii
Introduction	1
Chapter One Civil Liability	15
Section 1 Generality of ḍamān and its attribution	16
Section 2 Indirect cause	20
1. The Iraqi doctrines	22
2. The later Hanafi doctrine	35
3. The Medinan doctrine	37
Section 3 Ḍamān arising from possession	38
1. Fructus and manfāʿa	44
2. Pledge	46
3. Ijāra	58
4. Sale of a specific object	76
5. Usurpation	98
Section 4 Conclusion	120
Chapter Two Special Types of Sale and the Origin of Direct Agency	122
Section 1 Direct agency	122
Section 2 Trust sales (buyūʿ al-amāna)	128
1. Murābaḥa	133
2. Tawliya	149
3. Ishrāk	158
4. Conclusion	162
Section 3 Salam	163
1. Issues over which jurists are divided	164
2. Various types of salam	165
3. Conditions of validity	170
4. Defect in the object	184
5. Performance	186
6. Conclusion	207

Section 4 Conclusion	210
Chapter Three The Prohibition of Ribā	212
Section 1 Prohibition of interests on loans	214
Section 2 Ribā of excess in ‘gold for gold, silver for silver’	217
1. Origins	218
2. Maliki and Hanafi conceptions of money	231
Section 3 Ribā of delay in ‘wheat for wheat, dates for dates’	235
1. Credit sale	235
2. Salam	246
3. The Medinan origin of ribā of delay in exchange of money	248
Section 4 Ribā of excess in ‘wheat for wheat, dates for dates’	249
1. Muhāqala and muzāra‘a	251
2. Muzābana and ‘ ariyya sale	278
Section 5 Origins of the prohibition of ribā	294
Conclusion	299
Appendix	301
Bibliography	309
Index	319