

European Company Law in Accelerated Progress

Edited by

Steeff M. Bartman

KLUWER LAW

INTERNATIONAL

Table of Contents

Foreword	xix
Chapter 1
The EC Directive on Takeover Bids: Opting in as a Token of Good Corporate Governance	1
Steef M. Bartman
I. Introduction	1
II. Primacy of the Shareholders as the Leading Principle	3
III. Revision after Five Years	4
IV. Opting In and Corporate Governance Requirements	5
V. Summary and Conclusions	7
Chapter 2
Reforming United Kingdom Company Law in a European Context: a Long And Winding Road	9
John Birds
I. Background	10
II. Themes and Features of British Company Law	12
A. One Body of Law for all Companies	12
B. Sources of the Law – An Unwieldy Mass?	12
C. Contract-Based Law	13
D. The Interests of the Company	13
E. Europe	14
F. Self-Regulation	15

III.	The Process of Reform	15
	A. Objectives of the Review	16
	B. Terms of Reference	16
	C. The Work of the Steering Group and the Response of Government	17
IV.	The Key Areas of Reform	18
	A. The Interests of the Company and the Duties of Company Directors	18
	1. The Core Duty of Company Directors – Version One	19
	2. The Core Duty of Company Directors – Version Two	19
	B. Corporate Governance	21
	C. Deregulation and the Needs of Small Companies	23
	D. The Rights of Shareholders	25
	E. The Use of Technology	25
	F. Disclosure and Audit	25
	G. Formation of Companies and Capital Maintenance Rules	26
V.	Concluding Thoughts	27
	A. The Range of Business Entities	28
	B. Europe	29

Chapter 3

Corporate Governance Codes: Origins and Perspectives 31

Adriaan F.M. Dorresteyn and Cornelis de Groot

I.	Introduction	31
	A. Definition of Corporate Governance	31
	B. The Origins of the Corporate Governance Debate	33
II.	Reducing the Costs of the Separation of Ownership and Control	36
III.	Codes and Alternative Legal Techniques	37
	A. Sources of Corporate Governance	37
	B. Varieties of Corporate Governance Codes	38
	C. The Extent to which Corporate Governance Codes are Legally Binding	40
IV.	EU-Codes and EU-Ambitions	41
V.	The Centre of Discussion: The Board of Directors	44
	A. The Board in Corporate Governance Codes	44
	B. The Role of the Board: In Whose Interest?	45
	C. The Responsibilities of the Board	47
	D. The Responsibilities of the Supervisory Board in a Two-Tier Board Structure	47

E.	Director Independence	49
F.	(Mandatory) Committees and Committee Member Independence	51
G.	Management, the CEO and the Chairman of the Board	53
VI.	Perspectives	54
VII.	Conclusion	56

Chapter 4

Company Law Harmonization Reconsidered: What Role for the EC?

59

Luca Enriques

I.	Introduction: Toward a General Framework for the Assessment of Harmonization Initiatives in the Company Law Area	59
II.	Rationales for Harmonization	61
	A. Preventing a Race to the Bottom	61
	B. Correcting Market Failures	65
	C. Market Integration	66
	1. Company Law-Related Obstacles to the Four Freedoms	66
	2. Divergence as an Obstacle to Market Integration	68
	a. Level Playing Field	69
	b. Lower Transaction Costs from Harmonization?	69
	c. Standard-Setting	70
	D. Scale Economies in Law Production?	72
	E. Correcting Government Failures	73
	F. Summary	74
III.	Harmonization's Drawbacks	74
	A. Harmonization as a Cartel	75
	1. Over-Regulation, Excessive Innovation	75
	2. Less Experimentation	77
	B. What Price Uniformity?	78
	C. The Problems with Real-World Company Law Harmonization	78
	1. Higher Complexity and Uncertainty	79
	2. Petrification	79
	D. The Costs of the Harmonization Process	80
	E. Summary	81
IV.	Conclusions	81

Chapter 5
European Company Law and Conflicts of Interests	83
Loes Lennarts
I. Introduction	83
II. The Present: What Does European Company Law Do To Regulate Related Party Transactions?	84
III. Ghosts from the Past: European Rules on Related Party Transactions that Might Have Been	87
IV. The Future: Measures Still to be Implemented	90
V. Assessment: Is it Enough?	93
Chapter 6
The Provision of Equity Capital to Companies and Partnerships: A Comparison between the Law and Economics and the Comparative European Law Perspectives	95
Christiaan A. Schwarz
I. Introduction: Companies and Firms	95
II. The Evolution of Legal Personality	97
III. The Law and Economics Perspective	100
IV. Decision Rights Strategy and De Facto Management	102
V. In Summary	105
Chapter 7
The Golden Mean or a Dead End? The Takeover Directive in a Shareholder versus Stakeholder Perspective	107
Beate Sjøfjell
I. 'The Takeovers Directive is a Failure'	107
A. A Question of Perspective	107
II. Shareholder Primacy, the Stakeholder Approach – And My Perspective	109
A. The Never-Ending Debate	109
B. Shareholder Primacy	109
C. Stakeholder Theory	110
D. The Nordic Perspective	111
1. In Between?	111
2. Norway and Sweden: So Near and Yet So Far Apart?	112
E. Not Such a Deep Divide After All?	114
F. A Consensus on Values?	115

G.	More on My Perspective	115
1.	Integrating Sustainable Development	115
2.	Consequence for My Analytical Approach	116
III.	Shareholders and Stakeholders in Takeovers	117
A.	The Shareholders	117
B.	The Stakeholders	117
1.	A Takeover Issue?	117
2.	The Board as a Possible Stakeholders' Trustee	118
IV.	The Takeover Directive: What It Does and Does Not Do	119
A.	General Protection of Shareholders and Stakeholders	119
B.	Does the Directive Take a Stand?	120
V.	Shareholder Protection	121
A.	The Neutrality and Breakthrough Rules: Protection of Shareholders?	121
B.	Squeeze-Out and Sell-Out Rights	122
VI.	Minority Protection and the Mandatory Bid Rule	122
A.	Highly Prioritized in the Takeover Directive	122
B.	And Loved by Member States and (Some) Companies Alike	123
C.	What is the Directive Trying to Do with the Mandatory Bid?	124
1.	Protect Minority Shareholders?	124
2.	Protect the Market by Enabling Takeovers Through the Mandatory Bid Rule?	126
3.	The Market for Corporate Control as the Corporate Governance Solution	128
4.	Protect the Market – Although Hindering Takeovers?	128
VII.	Stakeholder Protection	132
A.	The Employees	132
B.	The Local Community	133
C.	The National Interest	133
D.	The Objective of Sustainable Development	134
1.	The Sustainable Development Objective in EC and EU Law	134
2.	Sustainable Development and Takeovers	135
3.	Integrating Sustainable Development in the Takeover Rules	136
4.	The Member States' Implementation of the Directive	136
5.	Obligations on the Bidder?	137
6.	A Lacking Integration of the Sustainable Development Objective	137
VIII.	Protection Beyond the Directive	138
A.	The Member States' Legislative Room after the Takeover Directive	138
B.	So, What Then?	139

IX.	A Golden Mean or a Dead End?	140
X.	References	140

Chapter 8

'Law as a Product' – Regulatory Competition in the Common Market and the European Private Company		145
Christoph Teichmann

I.	Introduction	145
II.	Regulatory Competition – Lessons To Be Drawn From the US-American Experience	146
III.	Corporate Forms Available in the Common Market	147
	A. National Corporate Forms	147
	1. Free Choice of Corporate Law Rules	147
	2. Transaction Costs for SMEs in the European Market for Corporate Forms	148
	B. The European Company (SE) – An Option for SMEs?	149
IV.	The European Private Company	150
	A. The EPC – A Private Sector Initiative	151
	1. Demand Articulated by SMEs and Their Representatives	151
	2. Basic Features of the Proposal for a European Private Company	152
	B. Feasibility Study Commissioned by the European Union	152
	1. The General Approach	152
	2. The Three Types of a European Legal Statute Considered by the Study	154
	3. Pros and Cons of the Different Types of European Statute	155
V.	A look forward: drafting a European statute for SMEs	156
VI.	Conclusion	157

Chapter 9

The SE as a Legal Form for Financial Companies		159
Erik Werlauff

I.	General Features of the SE	159
	A. The Need for a Common European Company	159
	B. Aims Still to be Achieved	160
	C. The SE's Equal Treatment With Other Public Limited Companies	161
	D. The Four Methods of Formation	162

E.	Employees' Co-Decision Rights must be Determined before an SE can be Registered	165
F.	Cross-Border Transfer of Domicile of an SE	168
II.	The SE as Corporate Vehicle for Companies in the Financial Sector	170
A.	A Cross-Border Scandinavian Merger where the SE could have been Applied in a Corporate Form Afterwards: Swedish Handelsbanken AB Takes Over Danish Midtbank A/S	170
B.	A Pan-Scandinavian Merger where the SE must be Applied, but the Road is Blocked at the Moment: Nordea AB to Take Over its Own Scandinavian subsidiaries by way of Cross-Border Merger	171
C.	Swedish Investment Companies: Interpretation of the Currency Provisions in the SE Regulation	173
D.	Is the SE as a Legal Form a Good Idea for Financial Companies?	173
E.	Other Scandinavian Countries	174
III.	Overall Conclusion	174