

A 1998

747

The Climate Change Convention and Developing Countries: From Conflict to Consensus?

by

Joyeeta Gupta

*Institute for Environmental Studies,
Free University Amsterdam,
Amsterdam, The Netherlands*

KLUWER ACADEMIC PUBLISHERS

DORDRECHT / BOSTON / LONDON

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface and acknowledgements .....	i
List of abbreviations, journals and scientific units .....	vi
Summary .....	viii
1. The climate change issue .....	175-6
1.1 Environmental space .....	1 = Dm hv
1.2 The climate change problem .....	3
1.3 The Climate Convention: The glass is half-full .....	9 ← 2nd 40 00
1.4 The research problem .....	17 ← 5th 100 100
1.5 Summary .....	20 ← 100 000
2. A theoretical framework .....	21
2.1 Introduction .....	21
2.2 An interdisciplinary approach .....	21
2.3 An integrated framework for analysis .....	35
2.4 Methodological issues .....	42
2.5 Summary .....	45
3: The domestic context: Opportunities and risks .....	46
3.1 Introduction .....	46
3.2 Climate change may have serious impacts on DCs .....	46
3.3 Climate change is not a priority domestic issue .....	52
3.4 Climate policy .....	58
3.5 Trends .....	71
3.6 Summary .....	73
4: Foreign policy: Between solidarity and fighting inequity .....	74
4.1 Introduction .....	74
4.2 Foreign policies .....	74
4.3 Perspectives on international instruments: The illusory carrot .....	88
4.4 Perspectives on cooperation: Elusive coalitions .....	93
4.5 Trends .....	96
4.6 Summary .....	98
5: GEF: The case of power politics .....	99 ← 100 000
5.1 The consensus .....	99
5.2 Behind the consensus .....	101
5.3 Induced convergence of interests .....	111
5.4 Trends and the future of the GEF-FCCC .....	114
5.5 Summary .....	115

6: Joint Implementation: Between hope and angst	116
6.1 The consensus	116
6.2 Behind the consensus	120
6.3 Induced convergence of interests	125
6.4 Trends and future of JI	130
6.5 Summary	131
7: Policy options and related non-decisions	132
7.1 Handicapped use of power	132
7.2 Analyzing the non-decisions	134
7.3 Trends and future implications	148
7.4 Summary	149
8: The politics of climate science	150
8.1 Introduction	150
8.2 Projections and methodologies	150
8.3 The costs of climate change	158
8.4 Trends: Structural imbalance in knowledge generation	161
8.5 Summary	165
9: The science of climate politics	166
9.1 Introduction	166
9.2 Processes of exclusion	166
9.3 Towards the politics of compromise	172
9.4 Summary	178
10: Towards enhanced cooperation	179
10.1 The research thesis revisited	179
10.2 Horizontal bottlenecks	179
10.3 Vertical bottlenecks	188
10.4 Towards conclusions and recommendations	190
10.5 Recommendations in the context of the regime life-cycle	200
10.6 A final word	205
References	206
List of treaties and other international legal instruments	223
Table of cases, UN and other international documents	224
Appendix 1: The United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change	225
Appendix 2: List of questions for the interviews	242
Appendix 3: Matrix of interviewees	244
Index	246