

The Woman Saint in Spanish Golden Age Drama

A/454049

Christopher D. Gascón

Lewisburg
Bucknell University Press

Contents

| | |
|---|-------------------|
| Acknowledgments | 9 |
| Introduction | 13 |
| 1. Ritual, Desire, and the Woman Saint in Spanish Baroque Theater | 23 |
| 2. The Woman Saint as Desiring Subject Sor Marcela de San Félix's Muerte del Apetito Lope de Vega's Vida y muerte de Santa Teresa de Jesús | 39 43 64 |
| 3. The Woman Saint as Forbidden Fruit and Christ Figure Ángela de Azevedo's La margarita del Tajo que dio nombre a Santarén Calderón de la Barca's El mágico prodigioso | 80 83 98 |
| 4. The Woman Saint as Symbolic Mediator Ángela de Azevedo's Dicha y desdicha del juego y devoción de la Virgen Tirso de Molina's La Santa Juana , Parts 2 and 3 | 125 127 145 |
| Conclusion | 162 |
| Notes | 170 |
| Bibliography | 190 |
| Index | 199 |