

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Susan Sellers Introduction	1
READING GENDER
Jane Aaron The Return of the Repressed: Reading Mary Shelley's The Last Man	9
Linda R. Williams Critical Warfare and Henry Miller's Tropic of Cancer	23
Ann Thompson 'Miranda, Where's Your Sister?': Reading Shakespeare's The Tempest	45
Rebecca O'Rourke Fingers in the Fruit Basket: A Feminist Reading of Jeanette Winterson's Oranges Are Not the Only Fruit	57
Janet Todd Jane Austen, Politics and Sensibility	71
Paulina Palmer Antonia White's Frost in May: A Lesbian Feminist Reading	89
WRITING GENDER
Rebecca Ferguson History, Memory and Language in Toni Morrison's Beloved	109
Claire Buck 'O Careless, Unspeakable Mother': Irigaray, H. D. and Maternal Origin	129

Lynne Pearce John Clare's Child Harold : The Road Not Taken	143
Elaine Hobby 'Oh Oxford Thou Art Full of Filth': The Prophetical Writings of Hester Biddle, 1629[?]-1696	157
Ruth Evans and Lesley Johnson The Assembly of Ladies : A Maze of Feminist Sign-Reading?	171
Penny Boumelha 'The Rattling of her Discourse and the Flapping of her Dress': 'Meredith Writing the 'Women of the Future''	197
Isobel Armstrong Postscript	209
Notes on Contributors	215
Bibliography	219