

NIGHT IN FRENCH LIBERTINE FICTION

MARINE/GANOFSKY

VOLTAIRE FOUNDATION
OXFORD

www.voltaire.ox.ac.uk

Contents

Introduction	1
i. Libertine fiction: a nocturnal genre?	4
ii. Libertine nocturnes	7
iii. The ‘Nocturnal Order’ of libertine nights	11
iv. The eroticisation of the nocturnal	13
v. The nocturnalisation of eroticism	16
vi. Chapter outline	18
1. Enlightening the night: a cultural and historical perspective on eighteenth-century nights	21
i. Intellectual enlightenment	22
ii. Material enlightenment	32
2. The nocturnal aesthetics of libertine fiction	43
i. Libertine writing, pornography and obscurity	43
ii. The embellishing obscurity of Crébillon’s oriental tales	49
iii. The eroticism of demi-jours in Le Souper des petits-mâîtres and Les Soupers de Daphné	58
iv. Voluptuous shadows in Thémidore	64
v. Félicia and sublime obscurity	73
3. Night as a hiding space	83
i. Night as a private space within communal living in Le Portier des chartreux and Mémoires de Suzon	86
ii. Night as an indulgent architectural space in La Petite Maison	94
iii. Night as an intimate body part in La Nuit merveilleuse	103
4. Nocturnal illusions: dreams of sylph-like lovers	111
i. The dream: the sleep of reason produces sylphs in Le Sylphe	116

ii. The mistake: the genie Makis, or the mistaken lover in Angola	125
iii. The lie: Clitandre, or a sylph of no consequence in La Nuit et le moment	131
iv. The illusion: Mirbelle, or the fleshless sylph in Les Malheurs de l'inconstance	139
5. Nocturnal revelations	149
i. Damon's Nyctelian initiation in Point de lendemain	154
ii. Laure's nocturnal education in Le Rideau levé	165
iii. Cécile's nightly enlightenment in Les Liaisons dangereuses	176
6. Queens of the night: women and their nocturnal mystery in Les Liaisons dangereuses	187
i. The marquise de Merteuil's nights, or the masquerade of femininity	190
ii. The présidente de Tourvel's shadow, or the female mystery	208
7. The end of libertine nights: Les Cent Vingt Journées de Sodome	229
i. Sade's Gothic and sublime nocturnes: within the dark night of the soul	231
ii. The Sadean nocturnal fortress	236
iii. Sade versus the libertine clair-obscur	245
Epilogue: beyond libertine nights – mornings and morrows	253
i. Mornings	254
ii. Morrows	259
Bibliography	263
i. Texts written before 1800	263
ii. Texts written after 1800	268
Index	279