

□ GRETE BROCHMANN AND KNUT KJELDSTADLI

A History of Immigration – The Case of Norway 900–2000

UNIVERSITETSFORLAGET

Table of Contents

Immigration: Contemporary questions, historical insights	11
--	----

Chapter 1

Medieval immigration, ca. 900 to ca. 1500	29
The world according to Snorri	29
Immigration: a move into an existing society	35
The church: an imported institution	39
Immigrants as specialists: state and church servants	42
Nobility and nationality	47
Middlemen between Norway and the continent: trade	51
Thralls: to be an underclass is the ultimate sin	55

Chapter 2

Migration in early modern Norway, ca. 1500 to 1814	59
The Oldenburg state: a mini-empire and a power state	59
Immigrants furnish the power state with personnel	63
Foreign descent: Norwegian bourgeoisie	66
From Catholic Christianity to Lutheranism	72
Mobile people: dangerous classes	77
Dominance and marginalization: assimilation processes in the early modern period	82

Chapter 3

Newcomers in the era of the nation state, 1814 to 1940 ..	87
Nation building: the Norwegian case	88
Members of the nation, notions of citizenship	89
Crossing the internal borders: mental images of “the other”	93
Why are demarcation lines drawn between groups?	99
Immigration policies: doors open, closed, ajar	103

Chapter 4

Migration and migrants in a modernizing society	111
Immigrants: numbers, background and destination	112
Emigration	115
Types of migrants, voluntary movers	117
Involuntary migrants, refugees	123

Chapter 5

Minorities and state policy, 1814 to 1940	127
Swedes	128
Danes and Germans	131
Kvens	133
Jews	135
Romani and Rom	139
Policing or including “the other”?	141
Regulating religion	142
Nationalist worries	145
Dissolving the ‘socially undesirable’	148
Assimilation or becoming a national minority?	151

Chapter 6

The migrants of the Second World War	157
The Germans in Norway	159
Prisoners of war	164
“Displaced persons” after the war	166
Biological racism on its way out	171
War brides in Norway	172

Chapter 7

Postwar growth and open borders	177
Refugees of the cold war	179
Social and cultural encounters	183
A more liberal regime	185
A modest wave of labour migrants	188
The Finnish peril	190
Towards the age of global migration	192
Foreign labour on the increase	194
The major immigration stop	198

Chapter 8

Immigration and immigrants in the 1970s	201
“The foreign worker problem”	203
Holes in the fence	206
Prosperity and radicalism	209
What kind of immigration policy?	211

Chapter 9

Asylum seekers: the third wave	213
“Jet refugees”	214
Adjustment in Norway	217

Chapter 10

Under the wings of The Good State	223
The political economy of good intentions	225
The welfare state and equal worth	226
Minority adjustment in a welfare state	229
What is integration?	230
Theory and practice	232

Chapter 11

Encounters within the nation	237
The monopolies are being challenged	239
Europe’s least polished nation	241
Life between two home countries	242
Tamil refugees in the fisheries	245

Oil experts and white niggers	246
Cultural encounters	250

Chapter 12

The 1990s: Control policy and internationalization	251
Immigration – a common European issue	252
Norway: a special case?	253
Externalization and prevention	256
Two central issues: illegal immigration and the asylum institute ...	258
A comprehensive approach to refugee policy	260
Bosnian war refugees: the great test	262

Chapter 13

Towards a new century	267
A day in the life of Nora Nordli	269
Changing attitudes?	271
Norway stops without immigrants!	275
The need for foreign labour	276
The religious connection	279

Chapter 14

The making of multicultural Norway	285
At the border	286
The legacy of the welfare state	287
Minority politics	291
The multicultural nation	294
The long story, 1100 years of immigration	297
Immigrants – many types	299
The state: shifting practises	302
The population – varying opinions	307
Immigrants as inhabitants	311
Literature	315
Index	323