CONTENTS

Preface	1
I. Introduction	5
1. A Unified Utilitarian Theory	5
2. A Utilitarian Theory of Distributive Justice	7
3. Main Differences between My Theory and That of Economists and Social Choice Theorists	15
4. The Contents of This Book	23
II. Existing Theories of Distributive Justice	29
1. Introduction	29
2. Libertarian Theory of Distributive Justice (Entitlement Theory)	30
3. Strict Egalitarianism	32
4. John Rawls's Difference Principle	34
5. Marxism, Desert Theory, and Utilitarianism ...	36
III. Randomness and Distribution	41
1. Randomness in Life and Distribution	41
2. Mathematical Analysis of the Effect of Randomness on Distribution	45
3. Randomness Regarded as Unjust	49
4. Examples of Randomness	57
IV. Contribution as a Pattern for Distribution ...	63
1. A Monistic View of the Pattern for Distribution	63
2. The Unsuitability or Insufficiency of Some Canons	65
3. Combination of the Canon of Social Utility with the Canon of Contribution	73
4. Consistence of Contribution with Ability, Effort, and Need	76
V. A Utilitarian New Subjectivistic Theory of Value	81
1. Proposal of a New Subjectivistic Theory of Value	81

2.	Definitions of Utility, Value, etc.	82
3.	The Statistical Nature of Value	93
4.	Comments on Nonsubjectivistic Theories of Value	98
5.	On Welfare and Welfarism	102
6.	The Disadvantages of the Traditional Classification of Value	106
7.	Proposal of a Classification of Value Based on Non-Replaceability	111
VI.	A Modified Expected Utility Theory	121
1.	Various Utility Theories	121
2.	Reasons for Utility to Have a Fixed Magnitude ..	128
3.	Weaknesses of the von Neumann-Morgenstern Theory and My Modification of It	132
4.	Constantly-Proportional Risk-Averse Functions as Reasonable Utility Functions	141
5.	The Orientation and Normalization of Utility Functions	143
6.	An Explanation of the Allais Paradox Using the Modified Utility Theory	149
VII.	Social Welfare Function As an Objective Function for Maximization	165
1.	An Unweighted Social Welfare Function for Equal Distribution As Ideal	165
2.	Social Welfare Functions with Weighting	172
3.	Monism of Distribution Optimization and Social Utility Maximization	176
4.	The Given Constant Value as the Constraint ...	178
VIII.	Salary Systems	185
1.	The Importance of Salary Systems	185
2.	The Justice Problem of Different Incomes in Different Organizations or Different Professions	188
3.	Indexes That Show the Features of Salary Systems	191
4.	A Hypothetical Ideal Salary System	202
5.	Discussion of the Hypothetical Ideal Salary System	211

IX. Criteria for the Measurement of Quality of Distribution	215
1. The Unreasonableness of Lorenz Curve Based on Gini Coefficient	215
2. The Inadequacy of the Quintuple (of Population) Method	218
3. Proposal of a New Criterion for Distributive Justice	219
4. Proposal of a Mathematical Model of Ideal Distribution	221
5. The Effect of Excessive Income on Income Distribution	225
X. A Basic Point of Emphasis in Distributive Justice	231
1. The Seriousness of Excessively High Income	231
2. On the Unreasonableness of Excessive High Income from the Point of View of Income	233
3. On the Unreasonableness of Excessive High Income from the Point of view of Consumption	237
4. The Inadequacy of Procedural Justice and the Necessity of Posterior Regulation	239
5. Money Can Buy Power	242
XI. Taxation as a Measure for Redistribution	249
1. Progressive Personal Income Tax	249
2. Corporate Tax	250
3. Legacy and Gift Tax	252
4. The Saving and Escapement of Tax by Large Enterprises	258
XII. Problems of Moral Community and Criteria for Distribution	267
1. A Classification of Problems According to Moral Community	267
2. Four Assumptions	273
3. Four Comparisons and Three Problems	278
4. The Distinction between the Choice of a Distribution Scheme and the Action of Changing a State	284

XIII. The Economic System of an Ideal Society	291
1. New Capitalism in the 21st Century	291
2. The Unreasonableness of Regarding Economic Value ₃ as a Career Value	296
3. The Advantages of Taking a Nonmaterial Value as a Career Value	300
4. On 'the Sickness of the Rich'	302
5. The Distribution Scheme of an Ideal Society ...	307
