

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword	viii
Chapter One.....	1
Fictional Portrayals of the Police
1.1 A brief overview of televised police procedurals in the United Kingdom and in Italy
1.2 Presentation of 'The Bill' and 'La Squadra'
1.3 A comparative study of the non-dialogical features in 'The Bill' and 'La Squadra'
Chapter Two	22
Research Framework: Talk in Institutional Settings
2.1 Conversation Analysis versus Critical Discourse Analysis
2.2 Ervine Goffman: framing, footing and production formats
2.3 Conversation Analysis
2.4 The comparative approach
2.5 The constitutive and regulative features of institutional discourse
Chapter Three	63
The Structure and Defining Features of the Formal Interview
3.1 The relevance of incumbent roles and the procedural consequentiality of context
3.2 Participant roles in the tri-partite interview framework
3.3 The asymmetrical nature of institutional discourse
3.4 Turn-taking distribution in the formal interview
3.5 Third turn receipt markers and the importance of next-turn proof procedure
3.6 Third turns in the formal interview
3.7 Topic management in the investigative interview
3.8 Constructing a police-preferred version of events
3.9 The use of repeats, silence and formulations in the formal institutional context

Chapter Four.....	96
Questions and Answers as Interactional Resources in the Adversarial Interview
4.1 Questioning in the construction of an activity type
4.2 The nature of questions
4.3 Questions as turns at talk
4.4 The activity of questioning
4.5 Adversarial strategies employed in investigative interviews
4.6 The collateral strategies which surround the activity of questioning
4.7 The legislative framework which governs investigative interviewing
4.8 Coercive questioning devices in adversarial interviews
4.9 The sequential and interactional features of answers
Chapter Five	158
Bridging the Gap between 'Reality' and 'Fiction'
5.1 The police procedural as a coherent reflection of social reality
5.2 Realism in 'The Bill'
5.3 Realism in 'La Squadra'
5.4 The interview room as the semiotic embodiment of an activity type
5.5 The place of the interview room scenes in the overall narrative structure of the episode
Chapter Six	194
Analysis of the Fictional Investigative Interviews in 'The Bill' and 'La Squadra'
6.1 Linguistic analysis of the investigative interviews in 'The Bill'
6.2 The tripartite framework and participant roles in the fictional interviews from 'The Bill'
6.3 Question typology and the presence of a 'deference structure' in the fictional investigative interviews from 'The Bill'
6.4 The activity of responding in the fictional interviews from 'The Bill'
6.5 The institutional incumbents' construction of a suspect identity
6.6 From suspect interview to culprit interview
6.7 The linguistic features of the culprit interviews in 'La Squadra'
6.8 'Third-degree' tactics employed in the 'stanza interrogatori'
6.9 Transcription glossary

Concluding Remarks	284
Bibliography	287