

Damiano Benvegnù

Animals and Animality in Primo Levi's Work

palgrave
macmillan

Contents

1	Introduction. Primo Levi and the Question of the Animal	1
1.1	Testimony, Identification, Literary Animals	14
1.2	Animal Studies and Italian Literature	26
1.3	Suffering, Techne, Creation	30
	Works Cited	46
2	Suffering I. Shared Vulnerability	51
2.1	“Can They Suffer?”	56
2.2	“Contro il dolore” and the Debate on Animal Vivisection	64
	Works Cited	87
3	Suffering II. Muteness and Testimony	89
3.1	Useless Violence, Bare Life, Testimony	90
3.2	Belli’s Donkey and Hurbinek’s Muteness	98
	Works Cited	109

4	Techne I. Animal Hands	111
4.1	From Homo Faber to Techne	118
4.2	The Hand that Writes: Writing as Techne and the Orangutan	130
	Works Cited	144
5	Techne II. Hybrids and Hubris	147
5.1	Science Fiction and the Monstrous Work of Zoomorphism	149
5.2	Centaurial Literature, Hybrid Techne	163
	Works Cited	174
6	Creation I. A New Writing	177
6.1	Toward “uno scrivere nuovo”	180
6.2	Creation and Re-Creation: Genesis	195
	Works Cited	208
7	Creation II. Re-Enchantment	211
7.1	Invented Animals and the Work of Testimony	212
7.2	Darwin, Job, and the Re-Enchantment of the World	220
	Works Cited	240
8	Conclusion. Animal Testimony	243
	Works Cited	272
	Works Cited	275
	Index	293