

Contents

Note on the Text	xi
List of Abbreviations	xiii
List of Figures	xv
List of Plates	xvii
Acknowledgments	xix

Introduction	i
--------------	---

Part I The Medieval Period

Introduction: Defining the medieval	13
1. Institutions and contexts: Writing and authorship, 1100–1400	17
A new language for a new people: Old Church Slavonic	19
Monastic writing: Translation, open boundaries, and selectivity	21
The limits of the literary system: Rhetoric, compilation, and genre	24
The meaning of readership	31
Scribal culture and the author function	33
Literary identity: Collective writing and singularity	35
Case study: The Voyage of Afanasy Nikitin : Self and other	37
2. Holy Rus': Landmarks in medieval literature	44
Founding stories: The Primary Chronicle	44
Case study: The bylina and Russia's magical kingdom	48
The sermon: Ilarion and the chosen people of Kiev	52
The prayer: Daniil Zatochnik	56
Hagiography as life-writing	57
Saints alive	62
Hagiographic collections	62
Founders and Holy Fathers: The example of St. Feodosy	65
Miracle workers, the Virgin, and holy fools	67
Case study: The holy fool in the modern tradition	70
Ilarion redux: The fifteenth-century elaboration of hagiography	72
Keyword: Word-weaving	75
3. Local narratives	82
Unhappy families: The trauma of invasion	82
The Lay of Igor's Campaign and the princely image	84

Case study: National identity, medievalism, and the discovery of the Lay of Igor's Campaign	88
Narratives of invasion	91
Catastrophic narratives: Defending Holy Russia	95
From Grand Prince to Tsar, 1200–1565: Elevation through charisma	101
Vladimir Monomakh	104
Alexander Nevsky	105
Dmitry Donskoi	107
Ivan the Terrible: Tsardom and the absolutist "I"	110
Center and periphery and the localism of the Tale of Petr and Fevronia	114
Conclusion	119

Part II The Seventeenth Century

Introduction: The problem of transition and a new approach	123
1. Paradise lost: National narratives	127
Narratives from the Time of Troubles to the Schism (1613–82)	128
Visions of salvation	132
Case study: Dukhovnye stikhi (poetic songs or spiritual rhymes)	136
Literature of the Schism (Raskol)	140
Case study: The Life of Archpriest Avvakum	142
2. Cultural interface: Printing, Humanist learning, and Orthodox resistance in the second half of the seventeenth century	146
3. Court theater	153
Keyword: Baroque	154
4. Poets	158
New expressions and techniques	168
Paradise regained: Simeon Polotsky's poetic garden	177
Friendship	178
Mortality	181
5. Prose	184
Popular fiction for a disrupted age: Social satire or literary fantasy?	184
Petrine novellas and fantasy fiction	193
Conclusion	197

Part III The Eighteenth Century

Introduction: The innovation of the eighteenth century	201
1. Defining classicism: The canons of taste	203
Keyword: Russian classicism	207
Questions of language and style	208
Case study: The creation of modern verse	213
Literary quarrels and a culture of contest	219

2. Institutions of writing and authorship	226
Court literature and absolutism: The ode	226
Court theater and tragedy	233
The reform of comedy and comedy of reform	236
The literary field: Writers and readership	239
Literary journals	243
Amateur writers, coteries, and readership	245
The authority of the writer: Satirical journals, politics, and society	248
The pleasures of literature	252
The genius of the poet	259
3. National narratives	264
The myth of Peter the Great and the progress narrative	264
Case study: Karamzin's Letters of a Russian Traveler	274
Literary voices on civic virtue and absolute rule	278
Case study: Aleksandr Radishchev and the philosophical life	286
Enlightenment and Counter-Enlightenment: A contemporary critique	292
4. Poetics and subjectivities between classicism and Romanticism	302
Writing a modern self: The discovery of feeling and the diary	303
Case study: Radishchev and the experimental diary	308
Poetry and self-creation	313
Love and death	315
Case study: Horatian monument poems from Lomonosov to Brodsky	320
Modes of landscape	326
5. Prose Fiction	331
Entertainment literature, or the problem of the novel	331
Conclusion	339

Part IV The Nineteenth Century

Introduction: Defining the nineteenth century	345
1. Institutions	348
Male poetic circles: Friendship and intellectual networks	348
Case study: Dueling writers	351
Radical friendships and female networks	354
Case study: Albums	360
2. The literary field: From amateur societies to professional institutions and literary alliances	363
Professionalization of literature: Thick journals and literary criticism	364
Case study: Imperial censorship	368
Landmarks in criticism	375
Case study: Nikolai Gogol	378
3. Subjectivities	385
Diary-writing and autobiography: Documentary and fictional self-presentation	385

Case study: Nadezhda Durova	387
Case study: Leo and Sofia Tolstoy as diary-writers	396
Elegy, love, and self-expression	401
Keyword: Romanticism	410
4. Forms of prose	423
The emergence of prose and the genres of fiction	423
The literature of Realism, the realism of literature: Fiction, class, society	427
Case study: Realism/realism	429
5. Literary identity and social structure of the imperial period	431
Cultural spaces	433
Keyword: Regional literature	436
Educated elite	439
Case study: Intelligentsia	441
Peasantry	444
Case study: Narod /The people	446
Merchants	448
The clergy	449
State bureaucrats (chinovniki)	452
Where do the raznochintsy fit?	455
Keyword: Nihilism	455
Where all classes meet	457
Case study: Corporal punishment	458
6. Types: Heroes and anti-heroes	460
Romantic outcasts, "superfluous men"	461
The genius	466
Madmen	467
"Little men"	471
The provincial	472
7. Heroines and emancipation	475
Status of women	475
"The necessary woman"	476
Mothers	477
Wives and mistresses	480
Fallen women and seductresses	487
Revolutionaries	490
Case study: Terrorism	491
8. Narratives of nation-building	496
The dramatization and fictionalization of history	496
Case study: War and Peace	499
The search for national identity	504
Keyword: Sobornost'	512
Case study: The national poet	514
Conclusion	518

Part V The Twentieth and Twenty-First Centuries

Introduction: The shape of the period	523
1. Institutions	525
Defining the Silver Age	525
Literary groups of the 1920s	528
Case study: Formalism	532
Case study: Mikhail Bakhtin	534
Literary life of the emigration, 1918 through the 1980s	536
Creation of the Union of Soviet Writers	542
Case study: Prorabotka, or political rebukes of writers	545
Literature and politics after Stalin: Aesopian language and ideological divisions	549
Samizdat, tamizdat, and the literary underground in the 1960s through 1980s	554
Case study: The Moscow–Tartu School	557
Perestroika and post-Soviet transformations of the literary field	560
2. The poetics of subjectivity	565
Symbolists and Acmeists	566
Keywords: Life-creation and self-construction (zhiznetvorchestvo)	568
Case study: Anna Akhmatova	573
Women's writing as a modernist legacy	575
Late modernism: Neo-Acmeism and other classical poetry	578
Case study: Joseph (Iosif) Brodsky	580
Russian spiritual poetry	589
Case study: Elena Shvarts	593
Neo-Romanticism	599
Interlude: Misfits in Russian poetry	606
3. The poetics of language	611
Futurism	611
Case study: Elena Guro	617
Avant-gardists of the 1920s	620
OBERIU	621
Neo-avant-garde	624
Concrete and Conceptualist poetry	631
Case study: Dmitry Prigov's "Militsaner"	635
Metarealism	639
Post-Soviet poetic languages	641
4. Prose and drama: Negotiations with history	644
New forms of prose and drama	645
Case study: Maxim Gorky and Leonid Andreev	646
Utopia and dystopia in early Soviet literature	654
Grotesque modernism of the 1920s and 1930s	661
Keyword: Skaz	664
Case study: Vladimir Nabokov	668
Socialist Realism	672

Women's prose and drama of the 1960s through 1990s	678
Case study: Liudmila Petrushevskaya	680
Existentialist prose and drama of the 1960s through 1980s	684
Underground modernisms of the 1960s through 1980s	688
Postmodernist literature: From late Soviet underground to post-Soviet mainstream	693
Case study: Moscow to the End of the Line by Venedikt Erofeev	694
In-between prose	704
5. Catastrophic narratives	709
Narratives of the Revolution and Civil War	709
Case study: Isaac Babel	714
Narratives of the Great Terror I	717
Narratives of the war	721
Narratives of the Great Terror II	729
6. Intelligentsia narratives	739
Intelligentsia narratives of the 1900s through 1920s	741
Intelligentsia narratives of the 1930s through 1950s	747
Case study: Osip Mandelstam's "I lost my way in the sky . . ."	751
Intelligentsia narratives of the 1960s through 1980s	756
Post-Soviet intelligentsia narratives	763
Conclusion	767
Guides to Further Reading	771
Notes	787
Picture Credits	911
Index	913