

Contents

Acknowledgments xi

- 1 Introduction to Programming 1
 - Defining Programming* 2
 - Historic Overview of TV Programming* 3
 - Programming Principles* 5
 - This Book's Approach to Programming* 9

I. CREATING, BUYING, AND SELLING: The Personnel Structure of the Television Industry

- 2 The Creative Team 15
 - Actors* 15
 - Writers* 18
 - Producers* 21
- 3 The Buyers: Network Television Management 25
 - President, Entertainment Division* 26
 - Vice Presidents* 27
 - Career Training for Network Programmers* 38
- 4 The Sellers of Primetime Television Programming 43
 - Independent Producers and Production Companies* 43
 - Major Studios* 48
 - Agents or Packagers* 59

II. DEVELOPING SERIES FOR PRIMETIME TELEVISION

- 5 Developing Series Concepts 63
 - Criteria for Effective Television Concepts* 63
 - Sources of Ideas* 66
 - Developing Concepts* 68
 - Types of Presentations* 71
 - Pitching a Presentation* 72

- 6 From Concept to Pilot Production 77
 - The Written Concept* 77
 - Pilot Story Construction* 83
 - Plot Patterns* 84
 - Characterization in the Story and Script* 87
 - The Written Script* 89
 - Revising the Script* 91
 - Sample Pilot Scripts* 91

- 7 From Pilot Production to Series 101
 - Pilots versus Presentations* 101
 - Network Approval Rights: The Battle over Creative Control* 104
 - The Actual Production Process* 113
 - The Postproduction Process* 121

III. NETWORK DECISION-MAKING STRATEGIES IN PRIMETIME TELEVISION: New and Current Series

- 8 Network Decision Factors: Testing and Scheduling 127
 - Audience Research Testing* 127
 - Scheduling Practices* 133

- 9 Current Programming 137
 - Importance of Current Programming* 137
 - Network and Studio Current Programming Departments* 141
 - Executive Concerns: Maintaining Current Series* 142
 - Tools and Techniques for Maintaining a Series* 151
 - Special Considerations: Stunts and Spin-offs* 153

IV. DEVELOPING OTHER PROJECTS FOR PRIMETIME TELEVISION

- 10 Miniseries, TV Movies, and Specials 159
 - Miniseries* 159
 - Television Movies* 165
 - Specials* 169

V. THE PRAGMATIC SIDE OF PRIMETIME TELEVISION

- 11 Constraints on Creativity 175
 Broadcast Standards and Practices 176
 Pressure Groups 179
- 12 Business Deals, License Fees, and Syndication 183
 License Fees 184
 Deficit Financing 185
 Escalating Production Costs 185
 Star Demands and Network Favors 189
 Residuals and Profits 190

VI. THE HISTORY AND IMPACT OF TECHNOLOGY ON PROGRAMMING TRENDS

- 13 The Effects of Technology on Television Programming 197
 Factors Contributing to Change 198
 The Near Future: Imminent Trends in Primetime Television 205
 The Distant Future: Projected Trends for Television 207
 The Impact of Technology on Programming Content 209

Appendix: Trade Magazines, Journals, and Reports 213

Annotated and Selected Bibliography 215

Index 219