

Contents

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: A Joke to the Eye 1

1. (Re)Viewing Ellison's Invisible Man: Comedy, Rage, and Cultural Tradition in an African American Classic 24
2. Dick Gregory, Moms Mabley, and Redd Foxx: Bridging the Gap between Comedy, Rage, and Race 69
3. From Absence to Flight: The Appearance of Comic Rage in the Black Arts and Black Power Movements, 1966–1976 113
4. Fury in the “Promised Land”: Comic Rage in George C. Wolfe's The Colored Museum and Paul Beatty's The White Boy Shuffle 154
5. Hollywood Shuffle and Bamboozled: Comic Rage, Black Film, and Popular Culture at the End of the Century 197
6. Direct from a Never Scared Bicentennial Nigger: Comic Rage in the Work of Richard Pryor, Whoopi Goldberg, and Chris Rock 228

Conclusion: On Being Pissed Off to the Highest Degree of Pissivity 252

Notes 257

Bibliography 267

Index 279