

Contents

Foreword
James Gunn and Karen Hellekson	ix
Introduction: "Everything's Coming Up Roses"—Or, Mainstream Feminist Science Fiction, the Uncola
Marleen S. Barr	1
 Part One: Utopia and Dystopia: A New Genre, Ecotopia, and the 1990s
1 Gender and Genre in the Feminist Critical Dystopias of Katharine Burdekin, Margaret Atwood , and Octavia Butler
Raffaella Baccolini	13
2 Revising Paradise: Judy Grahn's Ecotopia Mundane's World
Johanna Dehler	35
3 The Feminist Dystopia of the 1990s: Record of Failure, Midwife of Hope
Jane Donawerth	49
4 Post-Phallic Culture: Reality Now Resembles Utopian Feminist Science Fiction
Marleen S. Barr	67
 Part Two: Alternative Cyberpunk: Marge Piercy, Jeff Noon, and Pat Cadigan
5 The Biopolitics of Cyberspace: Piercy Hacks Gibson
June Deery	87

- 6 A Crossbreed Loneliness? Jeff Noon's Feminist Cyberpunk
Val Gough 109

- 7 Real Lives Complicate Matters in Schrödinger's World:
Pat Cadigan's Alternative Cyberpunk Vision
Elisabeth Kraus 129

Part Three: Sex/Gender: Eroticizing Cyborgs and Queering Science Fiction

- 8 The Erotics of the (cy)Borg: Authority and Gender in the Sociocultural Imaginary
Anne Cranny-Francis 145

- 9 Pinup and Cyborg: Exaggerated Gender and Artificial Intelligence
Despina Kakoudaki 165

- 10 (Re)reading Queerly: Science Fiction, Feminism, and the Defamiliarization of Gender
Veronica Hollinger 197

Part Four: First Contacts: Rereading Joanna Russ, Ursula K. Le Guin and South Africa, and Eleanor Arnason's Other

- 11 Determinate Politics of Indeterminacy: Reading Joanna Russ's
Recent Work in Light of Her Early Short Fiction
Jeanne Cortiel 219

- 12 Truth and Story: History in Ursula K. Le Guin's Short Fiction and the South African Truth and Reconciliation Commission
Deirdre Byrne 237

- 13 Incite/On-Site/Insight: Implications of the Other in Eleanor Arnason's Science Fiction
Joan Gordon 247

Part Five: New Female Heroes: Mexican Women and Chicanas, the Star Trek Scientist, and *Tank Girl

- 14 Mexican Women and Chicanas Enter Futuristic Fiction
Lisbeth Gant-Britton 261

15	The Woman Scientist in Star Trek: Voyager Robin Roberts	277
16	Postfeminism and the Female Action-Adventure Hero: Positioning Tank Girl Elyce Rae Helford	291
	Postscript: A Real Future Female: Dreams, Truth, and Hope Sheila Finch	309
	Index	311
	About the Contributors	321