

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	xi
Abbreviations	xiii
Introduction	1
The aims of the study	1
Summary of the narratives	3
Methodology	5
A previous study of 'Elements of the fantastic' in the Brendan narrative	8
Other scholarship	8
Chapter One St Brendan: the man and the manuscripts	13
Part One The authors and manuscripts of the Navigatio and the Anglo-Norman Voyage	13
Introduction	13
The dates, manuscripts and audience of the Navigatio	14
Genres of: the two narratives	19
The author, dates, manuscripts and audience of the Anglo-Norman Voyage	31
Part Two Historical and Literary Sources	43
Before the Voyage	43
Peregrinus and Exile	50
The Voyage of Brendan : an actual journey or fantastic fiction?	53
The Voyage of Brendan and the immrama	55
The Otherworld and other early influences	59
The Voyage Home	62
Conclusion	67
Chapter Two Accepting the fantastic: from the familiar to the fantastic-uncanny	69
Introduction	69
Todorov's model	70
Application of the model	75
Definition of the 'uncanny'	76

The opening scenes of the Brendan narratives	77
Mundane or uncanny?	77
Uncanny-familiar	81
Establishing the coracle as 'familiar'	84
Claustrophobia: the late-coming monks and the confinement of the coracle	86
The Supernumeraries	86
The patterns of the journey	95
The 'pure uncanny'	98
Uncanny silence and spiritual darkness: the Deserted Citadel	99
Religious symbolism and preordination	100
The uncanny	102
Fantastic-uncanny	104
Leading towards the fantastic-uncanny	106
Enormous creatures: the Island of Sheep and Jasconius	107
From the uncanny to the fantastic-uncanny	108
Gradation towards the fantastic	115
The Neutral Angels	116
Sources	117
A respite from the fantastic imagery?	119
Conclusion	124
 Chapter Three The marvels of the ocean: from the fantastic- uncanny to the marvellous	127
Introduction	127
The transition from the 'fantastic-uncanny' to the 'pure fantastic' and the monastic ideal	130
The Isle of Ailbe	131
The ascent towards the pure fantastic	137
The pure fantastic: the mysterious provision of food and the flaming arrow	138
The provision of food	139
The flaming arrow and other elements	142
A vital ingredient in the gradation towards the fantastic	145
The negative connotations of water	146
The spring on the Paradise of Birds	147
The springs on the Isle of Ailbe	147
The Intoxicating Spring	150

The Coagulated Sea	154
The significance of these scenes	156
The conflicts of monsters	158
The first conflict	160
The second conflict of monsters	163
The credibility of the conflicts of monsters	164
The rewards of faith—a temporary respite from the fantastic?	166
Conclusion	171
Chapter Four The mirrors of salvation	175
Introduction	175
Todorov's model	176
The three parts of the chapter	177
Part One Natural Exotica as supernatural forms	177
The Crystal Pillar	177
A natural phenomenon	178
Fantastic-uncanny	180
Religious symbolism	181
Sources	182
Unlocking the symbolism	184
The Smithy of Hell as a representation of evil	187
A natural phenomenon or a supernatural experience?	187
Religious significance	191
Claustrophobia	192
A safe environment for discussing damnation	193
The significance of the Crystal Pillar and the Smithy of Hell	195
Part Two Human representations of the diabolical and the divine	196
Judas Iscariot	197
Sources	197
The moral treatment	201
The punishments	202
Christ's mercy	205
Judas on the 'threshold'	206
The moral	214

Paul the Hermit	214
Source	215
Preparation for Paradise	216
Fantastic imagery	220
The significance of the two meetings	221
Part Three Achieving Paradise	222
Sources	223
Christian allegory and Celtic mythology	225
Liminality	226
The treatment of the fantastic	228
The return home	232
Conclusion	232
Conclusion	235
Principal differences between the Navigatio and the Anglo- Norman Voyage	235
Todorov and the fantastic	238
Appendix One The genealogy of the manuscripts of the Navigatio and the Anglo-Norman Voyage	245
Appendix Two Translation of the Anglo-Norman Voyage of St Brendan	257
Bibliography	313
Index	327