
Contents

Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	x
1 Preliminaries
1.1 Introduction	1
1.2 Grammar and meaning	1
1.3 Linguistic choice	2
1.4 Language in use	3
1.5 The study of texts	4
1.6 The notion of rank	5
1.7 Functions and metafunctions	7
Summary	10
Exercises	11
2 Labels
2.1 Music, mathematics, medicine and motor-vehicle maintenance	13
2.2 A political allegory	13
2.3 Word classes	15
2.4 Subjects	24
2.5 Groups	26
2.6 Three ways of looking at a clause	29
Summary	30
Further study	31
Exercises	32
3 Subject and related functions
3.1 Subject revisited	37
3.2 Finites and Predicators	41
3.3 Complements	47
3.4 Adjuncts	51
3.5 Sample analysis	57
Summary	57

Further study	58
Exercises	60
4 Information Structure and Thematic Structure	65
4.1 Organizing ideas	66
4.2 Information structure: Given and New information	71
4.3 Thematic structure: Theme and Rheme	79
4.4 The interaction of Information structure and Thematic structure	81
Summary	81
Further study	82
Exercises
5 Grammar and text	86
5.1 Text and texture	87
5.2 The textual component of the grammar	89
5.3 Thematic progression	94
5.4 Cohesive ties	102
Summary	102
Further study	104
Exercises
6 Process and Participant	107
6.1 Meanings: the clause as representation	109
6.2 Processes	111
6.3 Material Process	116
6.4 Mental Process	120
6.5 Relational Process	122
6.6 Verbal Process	125
6.7 Other Processes	126
6.8 Circumstance	126
Summary	127
Further study	127
Exercises	127
7 Structure of the Nominal Group	135
7.1 Head and Modifier revisited	137
7.2 Logical and Experiential functions	140
7.3 Postmodifier/Qualifier versus Adjunct	142
7.4 Recursion	143
7.5 Paratactic Nominal Group complexes	146
7.6 Other kinds of group complex	147
Summary	147
Further study	147
Exercises	148

8 Rankshifted clauses
8.1 Rankshifted clause as Postmodifier/Qualifier	153
8.2 The defining relative clause	155
8.3 Omitted relative pronoun	157
8.4 Relative with preposition	158
8.5 Non-finite relative clauses	159
8.6 Recursion revisited: multiple embedding of clauses	161
8.7 Rankshifted clause as Subject or Complement	163
8.8 Non-finite clauses as Subject or Complement	165
8.9 Extraposition	165
8.10 Other rankshifted clauses	167
Summary	168
Further study	169
Exercises	170
9 Clause complexes: expansion
9.1 Ways of combining clauses	175
9.2 'Equal' clauses	175
9.3 Dependent clauses	179
9.4 More complicated complexes	190
Summary	192
Further study	192
Exercises	193
10 Clause complexes: projection
10.1 Projection clauses	200
10.2 Paratactic projection clauses	200
10.3 Hypotactic projection clauses	202
10.4 Non-finite projections	205
10.5 Dependent versus embedded projections	206
10.6 More complicated examples	208
10.7 Ambiguous structures	211
Summary	212
Further study	212
Exercises	213
11 Applications of Functional Analysis
11.1 Explanations and theories	220
11.2 Writing in science and technology	221
11.3 Valued texts	226
11.4 English language teaching	229
11.5 Language and power	232
Summary	236
Further study	237

12 Historical perspectives
12.1 Origins	239
12.2 Before the twentieth century	239
12.3 De Saussure	241
12.4 Some American linguists	243
12.5 Whorf	245
12.6 Prague School	247
12.7 Firth and Malinowski	248
12.8 Two other contemporary approaches	250
12.9 Corpus linguistics	250
12.10 Hallidayan reference grammars	252
Summary	253
Further study	253
Glossary	255
References	263
Index of Authors	270
Subject Index	273