

Contents

	Notes on contributors	vii
	Acknowledgements	ix
	Illustration	17
1	Introduction Susan Zimmerman	1
2	The subtexts of The Roaring Girl Stephen Orgel	12
3	Twins and travesties: gender, dependency and sexual availability in Twelfth Night Lisa Jardine	27
4	Disruptive desire: artifice and indeterminacy in Jacobean comedy Susan Zimmerman	39
5	Transvestism and the 'body beneath': speculating on the boy actor Peter Stallybrass	64
6	Desire's excess and the English Renaissance theatre: Edward II , Troilus and Cressida , Othello Catherine Belsey	84
7	'Lawless desires well tempered' Kathleen McLuskie	103
8	Making a difference: male/male 'desire' in tragedy, comedy, and tragi-comedy Bruce R. Smith	127
9	The (in)significance of 'lesbian' desire in early modern England Valerie Traub	150
10	Sex and social conflict: the erotics of The Roaring Girl Jean E. Howard	170
	Index	191