

CONTENTS

Part I Cryonics as an Ethical Problem	1
1 Pausing Death	3
Weird Goals	3
Starting and Ending Life in Liquid Nitrogen	7
The Information-Theoretic Criterion of Death	9
Public Scepticism Towards Biotechnology	12
Against Nature	13
Humans Should Not “Play God”	14
Weirdness and Repugnance	15
Uncertainty	16
Only the Rich Will Be Able to Afford It	18
References	21
2 Resuming Life	23
Objections to Cryonics	24
Waste of Resources	25
Waste of Organs for Transplants	25
Waste of Money That Could Be Used for Donation to an Effective Charity	27
Indifference of the Future	34
No Interest in Spending Resources on Reviving the Cryopreserved	35
No Interest in Developing Cryonics Technology	36

	No Interest in "Homo sapiens"	37
	Desirability of Being Revived in the Future	38
	Trouble Adapting Even to an Objectively Better World	39
	References	42
Part II	Cryonics as a Step Towards Immortality	45
3	The Death Conundrum	49
	Is Death Bad?	49
	Death as Transition to Nonexistence	50
	A Life Worth Starting and a Life Worth Living	51
	Whose Nonexistence?	53
	Death as Deprivation	55
	The Harm of Deprivation	55
	The Plausible Counterfactuals	57
	Epistemic Disagreement About Plausible Counterfactuals	58
	Death as Deprivation of Negative Counterfactuals	60
	Death as Frustration of Desires	61
	References	66
4	The Immortality Conundrum	67
	Different Types of Immortality	67
	What Would an Indefinitely Long Life Look Like?	70
	Freedom from Regrets	70
	Personal Identity	74
	A Recognizably Human Life	78
	Would Virtual Immortality Deprive People of Eternity in Heaven?	83
	Boredom	86
	Tiredness	90
	References	93

Part III	Alternative Uses of Cryonics	95
5	Cryothanasia	97
	Objections to Euthanasia Applied to Cryothanasia	100
	Deontological	101
	Faith-Based	102
	Principles of Medical Ethics	103
	Weirdness and Repugnance	105
	Unlikelihood and Futility	106
	Resource Use	108
	References	109
6	Cryosuspension of Pregnancy	111
	Giving Pregnant Women Another Option	113
	Would Objections to Abortion Apply to Cryosuspension of Pregnancy?	115
	What Type of "Future Like Ours"?	116
	Potentiality	117
	Killing an Innocent Is Always Impermissible	119
	Reproductive Technology	120
	Therapeutic Aid	122
	Adoption	123
	Ectogenesis	124
	Limits	127
	References	130
Index		133