

Table of Contents

Foreword.....	iii
List of Illustrations.....	v
List of Tables.....	xi
INTRODUCTION (C. Carreras & R. Morais).....	1
Part One
THE NATURE OF THE ROMAN TRADE IN THE ATLANTIC
1.1 An archaeological perspective (C. Carreras).....	7
1.2 Trade and the means of transportation (R. Morais).....	21
1.3 The costs of transport in Hispania (P. de Soto).....	31
Part Two
THE ATLANTIC ROUTE
2.1 The Latin Sea and the Ocean conquest (II-I BC) (C. Aranegui).....	47
2.2 Formal Romanisation and Atlantic projection of amphorae from the Guadalquivir valley (E. García Vargas).....	55
2.3 Rome and whale fishing – Archaeological evidence from the Fretum Gaditanum (D. Bernal Casasola).....	67
2.4 Seaports and fluvial harbours in Portuguese territory – the options for ancient harbour activities within a changing nautical landscape (M.L. Blot).....	81
2.5 Looking towards the North (R. Morais).....	91
2.6 Roman lighthouses on the Atlantic coast (C. Fernández Ochoa and A. Morillo).....	109
Part Three
THE MILITARY SUPPLY FROM THE LATE REPUBLICAN TO THE EARLY EMPIRE PERIOD
3.1 The structure of Roman military supply: an explanatory model (C. Carreras).....	119
3.2 Supplying armies in the Iberian Peninsula during the Republic (P. Edrkamp).....	135
3.3 Garrisons, military logistics and civil populations in the Late Republic: Africa and Hispania (T. Ñaco).....	145
3.4 Octavian's reforms (C. Carreras).....	151
3.5 Demand and military supply in the northwest of Hispania throughout the Early Empire (A. Morillo).....	157

3.6 Hispania: a particular supply network (C. Carreras)	173
---	-----

Part Four

THE ROMAN TRADE ON THE ATLANTIC FAÇADE: THE AMPHORAE

4.1 The incorporation of the Baetican hinterland into the western supply during the Late Republic – A reading based on the distribution of Guadalquivir’s minority amphora types (R.R. de Almeida)	191
4.2 The Western African amphorae (II BC – I AD) (C. Aranegui).....	197
4.3 A case study from the Haltern 70 amphorae (C. Carreras).....	201
4.4 Bracara Augusta (R. Morais).....	213
4.5 The mining area of Quinta da Ivanta (R. Morais)	223
4.6 Rías Baixas and Vigo (Vicus Eleni) (A. Fernández)	229
4.7 The example of Astorga and León (C. Carreras).....	239
4.8 The hybrid market system as suggested by Haltern 70 amphorae (R. Morais)	245

Part Five

THE ATLANTIC TRADE ELITES

5.1 The Gaditan elites and the figure of L. Cornelius Balbus (C. Carreras).....	249
5.2 The Atlantic traders: the Gaditan and Lusitanian elites (R. Morais)	255
5.3 Was there a true Atlantic vocation among the first emperors? (R. Morais)	259
CONCLUSION: The new Atlantic frontier (C. Carreras & R. Morais).....	261
Bibliography.....	265