PREFACE	v
CHAPTER ONE
INTRODUCTION	3
The Status of Explanations Proposed	4
Empirical Derivations from Explanations	5
The Development of the Book	6
Concluding Comments	12
CHAPTER TWO
THE LOGIC OF SCIENTIFIC INFERENCE	15
I / Fundamental Forms of Scientific Inference	15
Theoretical and Empirical Statements	15
Testing Theories with Observations	17
	ix

Multiple Tests of Theories	18
The Fundamental Criterion of a Strong Test of Theory	20
Two Very General Alternative Theories: Statistical Inference	23
The Crucial Experiment	24
II / The Structure of Causal Theories	28
Definition of Variables	28
Definition of Causal Laws	31
Observation in Support of Causal Theories	32
III / Scientific Concepts	38
Change of Concepts as Theories Change	38
Conceptualization of Variables	41
Type-Concepts	43
Types as a Convenience in Talking About Interaction Effects	45
IV / Levels of Generality in Social Theory	47
An Outline of Levels of Generality	48
Levels of Critiques	50
V / Conclusions	53

CHAPTER THREE

COMPLEX CAUSAL STRUCTURES: DEMOGRAPHIC, FUNCTIONAL, AND HISTORICIST EXPLANATIONS OF SOCIAL PHENOMENA	57
I / Demographic Explanations of Social Phenomena	60
The Simplest Integrated Demographic Theory: Population Growth with Negligible Reproductive Cycles	62
A More Complex Integrated Demographic Theory	64
Incomplete or Open Demographic Explanations: Rates, Quantities, and Proportions	69
Demographic Explanation Summarized	78

II /	Functional Causal Imagery	80
	Indications for the Use of Functional Imagery	82
	Types of Social Selection Processes	85
	The Logic of Functional Explanation	87
	A Comment on the Conservative Nature of Functional Explanation	91
	Marxian Functionalism: Functional Arguments in a System of Unequal Power	93
	Summary	98
III /	Historicist Causal Imagery	101
	The Causal Structure of Historicist Explanations	103
	"Survivals" and Functional Explanations	104
	Empirical Derivations from Functional Historicism	107
	Institutions and Historicist Explanations	107
	Summary of Empirical Derivations from Institutional-Historicist Theories	117
	Historical Causes in Institutional-Historicist Explanations	118
	Institutional and Functional Historicism	118
	Sunk Costs and Historicist Explanations	120
	The Conditions of the Permanence of Resources	121
	The Historical Sources of Sunk Costs	123
	Micro-historicism and Cohort Analysis	125
IV /	The Problem of the Choice of Variables in Causal Explanations	129
TECHNICAL APPENDIX TO CHAPTER THREE / The Linear Directed Graph Approach to Complex Causal Structures		130
	The Basic Idea of a Linear Graph	131
	Chain or Cascade Graphs	132
	Reduction of More Complex Graphs	133
	Loops in Linear Graphs	135
	The Relations Between Tensions and Homeostasis in Functional Structures	136

The Relation Between Tension and Structure
Activity	139
A Formal Representation of Marxian Functionalism	141
Loops Not Touching the Causal Path	143
The General Solution for Graph Transmittance	147
Conclusion	148

CHAPTER FOUR

THE CONCEPTUALIZATION OF POWER PHENOMENA	149
I / Rights in Things and Rights in Persons	155
Individual Powers	155
Corporate Powers	157
II / Legitimacy of Powers	158
The Nesting of Power	158
Doctrines of Legitimacy	160
A Concept of Legitimacy	162
III / An Information Conception of Power	163
Decisions and Information	163
Prices in Markets as Information	165
Features of Price Systems	166
Situational Variations in Power	169
The Logical Structure of Information Concepts	171
IV / Political Incorporation	173
Political Isolation and Incorporation	173
The Components of Political Access	174
The Incorporation of the German Proletariat	176
The Construction of a Concept of Incorporation	177
Some Difficulties	178
The Logical Structure of the Concept	180
V / Institutions and Institutional Integration	181
Values and Power	181
A Correlation Concept of Institutions	182

	Institutional Areas and Rank-related Power	184
	Institutional Conflict	186
	The Logical Structure of the Concept of Institutions	188
VI /	The Creation of Organizations	188
	The Dispersion of Powers Needed by Projects	188
	Proposals and the Assembly of Powers	189
	Feasible Coalitions	193
	Forming Coalitions	194
	The Logical Structure of Feasible Sets	196
VII /	Conclusions	198
CHAPTER FIVE
	THE CONCEPTUALIZATION OF ENVIRONMENTAL EFFECTS	201
I /	The Basic Logical Form of Environmental Explanations	202
	An Example: Elections and Consensus	202
	A Formal Statement of Environmental Effects	204
II /	Environmental Psychological Effects	205
	Group Culture and Individual Attitudes	205
	Refining the Mapping Variable	206
	Identifying Group Cultures	207
III /	The Demography of Opportunity	209
	The Structural Determinants of Vacant Positions	209
	The Opportunity of Individuals	210
	Opportunity in Bureaucracies	211
	Demographic Predictors of Training	212
IV /	Aspiration as a Mapping Variable	214
	Sex Variation in Aspirations	214
	Rebellion and Aspiration	214

V /	Geopolitical Concepts and Military Vulnerability	216
	The Territorial Aspect of Power	216
	The Causes of Vulnerability	218
	Summed Vulnerability	221
	Mapping Vulnerabilities	223
	Derived Geopolitical Concepts	223
	Some Applications of the Conceptual Apparatus	227
	The Logic of Potential Concepts	230
VI /	Conclusions	231
CHAPTER SIX
	CONCEPTS ABOUT THE STRUCTURE OF ACTIVITIES	233
I /	The Structure of Attention	237
	Spatial Aspects of Attention Regulation	237
	Causal Significance of Monopoly of Focus of Attention	239
	The Temporal "Size" of a Group and Group Influence	240
	Aggregate Effects of Group Activity on the Environment	242
	The Schedule and Agenda of Group Attention	243
	Power and Agenda-making in Groups of Different Structure	244
	The Logical Structure of Attention Concepts	245
II /	Activities Concepts Built on the Variance	248
	The Significance of Variability	248
	The Logical Structure of Variance-related Concepts	264
III /	Space-related Concepts and the Ecological Analysis of Activities	265
	Space and the Causal Connection Between Activities	265
	The General Concept of External Effects	269
	Types of External Effects	270

General Concept-forming Strategy for External Effects	277
Networks, Nodes, and Commerce: Some Empirical Food for Thought	278
Conceptual Formulations of Nodal Concepts	281
General Strategies for Concepts on Networks	288
Concluding Comments	290
ENVOY	293
