

Comic Books, Graphic Novels and the Holocaust

Beyond Maus

Edited by
Ewa Stańczyk

Contents

| | |
|--|-----|
| Citation Information | vii |
| Notes on Contributors | ix |
| | |
| Introduction Ewa Stańczyk | 1 |
| 1 Picturing anti-Semitism in the Nazi-occupied Netherlands: anti-Jewish stereotyping in a racist Second World War comic strip Kees Ribbens | 8 |
| 2 Four colour anti-fascism: postwar narratives and the obfuscation of the Holocaust in East German comics Sean Eedy | 24 |
| 3 De-Judaizing the Shoah in Polish comic books Ewa Stańczyk | 36 |
| 4 Between memory, didacticism and the Jewish revival: the Holocaust in Italian comic books Paolino Nappi | 51 |
| 5 The Shoah, Czech comics and Drda/Mazal's "The Enormous Disc of the Sun" José Alaniz | 64 |
| 6 "Draw yourself out of it": Miriam Katin's graphic metamorphosis of trauma Diederik Oostdijk | 79 |
| 7 Mapping transgenerational memory of the Shoah in third generation graphic narratives: on Amy Kurzweil's Flying Couch (2016) Dana Mihăilescu | 93 |

CONTENTS

| | | |
|---|--|-----|
| 8 | Not seeing Auschwitz: memory, generation and representations of the Holocaust in twenty-first century French comics Claire Gorrara | 111 |
| | Index | 127 |