

Ken Ishida

Japan, Italy and the Road to the Tripartite
Alliance

palgrave
macmillan

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
1.1	The Foreign Policy Decision-Making Structures of Japan and Italy	6
1.2	The Prehistory of the Axis Formation	9
1.3	A Brief Overview of Chapters	14
2	The Ideological Backgrounds of Axis Foreign Policies	19
2.1	Fascism as a Point of Reference	23
2.2	Racism as a Hierarchical Prejudice	29
2.3	Anti-communism as a Common Adhesive	37
2.3.1	Criticizing the League of Nations	41
2.3.2	Justifying Military Intervention	44
2.3.3	Aligning Against Communism	48
3	Coordinators: The Two Prime and Foreign Ministers, Koki Hirota and Benito Mussolini	53
3.1	Features of Public Utterances	55
3.2	The Basic Attitude Toward Naval Disarmament and the League of Nations	61
3.2.1	The Japanese Complacent Repudiation of Naval Treaties	62
3.2.2	Italian Ambiguous Diplomacy Toward the League	65

3.3	The Coordination Mechanism in Decision-Making Processes	70
3.3.1	Hirota's Passive Attitude of Unlimited Magnanimity	71
3.3.2	Mussolini's Active Judgment of Phased Strategy	76
4	Planners: The Two Undersecretaries, Mamoru Shigemitsu and Fulvio Suvich	85
4.1	Financial Problems as a Tool of Foreign Policy	87
4.2	The Search for Regional Hegemony	92
4.2.1	Shigemitsu's Plan to Tame Chinese Nationalism	92
4.2.2	Suvich's Plan for Pro-fascist Austria	95
4.3	Axis Interference and British Non-commitment Policy	100
4.3.1	Partial Success in 1934 and the Exit of Shigemitsu	100
4.3.2	Suvich's Stalemate Over the Crises of Austria and Ethiopia	106
5	Negotiators: The Two Ambassadors to Britain, Shigeru Yoshida and Dino Grandi	115
5.1	The Degradation of Being Ambassadors in London	116
5.1.1	Emerging Political Diplomats	116
5.1.2	The Double-Dealing of the Anglophiles	120
5.2	Disobedient Imperialists	125
5.2.1	Anti-communist Stances	126
5.2.2	Extraordinary Negotiations	128
5.3	Two Pendulum Theories	133
6	Traditional Diplomats and New Actors	139
6.1	Followers and Promoters: Yakichiro Suma and Raffaele Guariglia	141
6.2	Powerless Critics: Naotake Sato and Giuseppe Bastianini	145
6.3	New Key Actors: Fumimaro Konoe and Galeazzo Ciano	150
7	The East Asian Crisis and Globalization of the Axis	157
7.1	The Brussels Nine Power Treaty Conference	159
7.2	Conclusion of the Tripartite Anti-Comintern Pact	163
7.2.1	Italy's Ideological Inclination	163

7.2.2	Japan's Ambiguous Realism	166
7.2.3	Germany's Internal Turmoil	169
7.3	The Italian Recognition of Manchukuo	172
7.4	The German Mediation of the Sino-Japanese War	176
7.5	The Italian Withdrawal from the League of Nations	181
8	Conclusion	189
	Select Bibliography	197
	Index	213