

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	1
1 Werewolves, Vampires, and the “Sacred Wo/men” of Soviet Discourse in Pravda and beyond in the 1930s and 1940s	21
2 Drawing Borders in the Sky: Pirates and Damsels in Distress of Aerial Hijackings in Soviet Press, Literature, and Film	37
3 Our Man in Chile, or Victor Jara’s Posthumous Life in Soviet Media and Popular Culture	63
4 Fathers, Sons, and the Imperial Spirit: The Wartime Homo Sacer ’s Competitive Victimhood	83
5 Robber Baron or Dissident Intellectual: The Businessman Hero at the Crossroads of History	141
Conclusion	165
Notes	175
Bibliography	211
Index	229