

Contents

| | |
|--|------|
| List of illustrations | viii |
| Acknowledgements | ix |
| Introduction | 1 |
| 1 “Troubles began quietly”: Tensions of emergence in E. M. Forster’s “The Machine Stops” | 16 |
| 2 “Libraries full of Kants”: Heretics, history and Yevgeny Zamyatin’s We | 27 |
| 3 Experiments, with sex and drugs: Aldous Huxley’s Brave New World | 53 |
| 4 “It has happened to Europe before but never to me”: Allegory and English exceptionalism in 1930s dystopias | 75 |
| 5 Nazism, myth and the pastoral in Katharine Burdekin’s dystopian fiction | 100 |
| 6 Dystopia at its limits: The Second World War and history | 127 |
| 7 Bodies and nobodies: George Orwell’s Nineteen Eighty-Four | 149 |
| 8 “Life in all its forms is strife”: The Cold War nuclear threat and John Wyndham’s pessimistic liberal utopianism | 175 |
| Conclusion | 200 |
| Bibliography | 207 |
| Index | 227 |