

Table of Contents

1. OCCUPATIONAL STRUCTURE AND MOBILITY PROCESS	1
Stratification Theory and Mobility Research	2
Method of Data Collection	10
Organization of the Book	19
2. THE OCCUPATIONAL STRUCTURE I: PATTERNS OF MOVEMENT	23
The Flow of Manpower	26
Supply and Recruitment from One Generation to the Next	38
The Significance of Career Beginnings	48
Mobility and Class Boundaries	58
Dimensions of Social Distance	67
Conclusions	76
3. THE OCCUPATIONAL STRUCTURE II: HISTORICAL TRENDS	81
Cohorts versus Generations	82
Mobility Trends	90
Direct Comparisons between Years	97
Indirect Inferences	105
Intercohort Comparisons in Mobility to First Job	107
Net Impressions	111
4. ASCRIBED AND ACHIEVED STATUS: TECHNIQUES OF MEASUREMENT AND ANALYSIS	115
Measuring the Status of Occupations	117
Multiple-Classification Analysis	128
Illustration of Multiple-Classification Analysis	132
Regression Analysis	140
Covariance Analysis	147
Analyzing Mobility Distributions: The Case of Education	152
5. THE PROCESS OF STRATIFICATION	163
A Basic Model	165
Path Coefficients	171

Age Groups: The Life Cycle of a Synthetic Cohort	177
Conjectures and Anticipations	188
Issues Posed by Mobility Variables	194
The Concept of a Vicious Circle	199
6. INEQUALITY OF OPPORTUNITY	207
Negroes and Whites	208
Southerners and Northerners	213
The Negro in the South and in the North	219
Immigration	227
National Origins	231
Conclusions	238
7. GEOGRAPHICAL AND SOCIAL MOBILITY	243
Community Size and Occupational Conditions	244
Geographic Motility	250
The Significance of Migration	255
Opportunity Structure and Migration Process	259
The Dynamics of Social and Spatial Movements	266
Conclusions: Migration and Universalism	271
8. FARM BACKGROUND AND OCCUPATIONAL ACHIEVEMENT	277
Migration from Farms	278
Distribution of Men with Farm Background	281
Farm Background and the Process of Stratification	286
Occupational Differentials by Size of Community	292
9. KINSHIP AND CAREERS	295
Size of Parental Family	298
Sibling Position	307
The Structure of Family Relations	313
Family Climate and Achievement	316
Formalization of Interpretations	320
Conclusions	328
10. MARRIAGE AND OCCUPATIONAL STATUS	331
Broken Families	331
Marital Status as a Career Contingency	337
Making a Good Match	341
Assortative Mating	346
Educational Homogamy	354
Conclusions	359

11. DIFFERENTIAL FERTILITY AND OCCUPATIONAL MOBILITY	361
Historical Background	361
The Mobility Hypothesis	367
Fertility in Relation to Intragenerational Mobility	371
Fertility in Relation to Intergenerational Mobility	381
Conditions Modifying Occupational Differentials in Fertility	389
Alternative Perspective	392
12. OCCUPATIONAL STRUCTURE AND STRATIFICATION SYSTEM	401
Conditions of Occupational Success	401
Family and Occupational Life	410
Occupational Structure and Historical Trends	418
Causes of Social Mobility in Contemporary Society	425
Opportunity and Democracy	432
Functions of Mobility Research	441
 APPENDICES
A. Bibliography of Official Government Publications Relating to the Population Covered in OCG	443
B. Questionnaire for Occupational Changes in a Generation	445
C. Notes on Coverage of OCG Tabulations and Comparability with Other Sources	451
D. Chicago Pretest Matching Study	457
E. Census Checks on Retrospective Data	463
F. Effect of Nonresponse on Correlation Results	471
G. Estimated Standard Errors of Percentages in OCG Data	477
H. Summary of Results of Multiple-Classification Analysis	479
I. Migration Classification	491
J. Additional Tables	495
 INDEX	 513