

CONTENTS

Introduction	7
Belgium and the German Invasion of 1914	11
Belgium, a laboratory for Catholics in a liberal democracy	13
Catholic Party between conservatives and social Catholicism	16
Cardinal Mercier, Belgium's primate	19
The German invasion	21
A Protestant-Catholic Holy War?	31
The 1914 conclave	34
Pope Benedict XV and the Belgian dilemma	39
Mercier's Pastoral Letter "Patriotism and Endurance"	47
Cardinal Mercier and the fall of Antwerp	49
The Cardinal's choice is maturing	54
Patriotism and Endurance	59
Alternatives were possible	62
In Conflict with the Occupier	69
The German reaction	70
Meanwhile in the Vatican	80
The nation's hero	86
Mercier and Benedict XV	91
A new crisis	92
Banishment to Rome?	95
Letter to the bishops of Germany and Austria	100
Meeting with the pope	102
Triumph in Rome	112
Arm wrestling about the return	116
"At our return from Rome"	118

Arrests, Deportations, and State Looting	125
Arrests and executions	126
Dismantling of a nation	130
Resistance against the deportations	132
Towards a public papal condemnation?	137
Vatican pressure	142
The Flemish Question	147
Flamenpolitik	150
A Flemish university in Ghent	153
The Belgian administration split	154
Roman questions regarding Mercier's stance	157
Roman Realpolitik	165
Holy War or Holy Peace	171
A just war?	173
First search for a negotiated solution	175
Towards a compromise peace in 1916?	180
Pope Benedict's peace proposal	186
"The bitterest hour of our life"	191
The end of the war	193
The Allies' Hero of a Diminished Belgium	199
Towards a solution for the Roman question?	200
Belgium after the armistice	204
Triumphal tour of the United States and Canada	212
Conclusion	220
Annex: Patriotism and Endurance – Christmas 1914	229
Bibliography	247
Index of Persons	259
Colophon	263