

Contents

- 1 Introduction: An Analytical Framework for Studying Territoriality of the Vote in Eastern Europe 1
Arjan H. Schakel and Régis Dandoy
- 2 Bosnia and Herzegovina: An Archetypical Example of an Ethnocracy 35
John Hulsey and Dejan Stjepanović
- 3 Croatia: Elections for Weak Counties When Regionalization Is Not Finished Yet 59
Ivan Koprić, Daria Dubajić, Tijana Vukojičić Tomić, and Romea Manojlović
- 4 Czech Republic: Regional Elections Without Regional Politics 83
Michal Pink
- 5 Hungary: Are Neglected Regional Elections Second-Order Elections? 105
Gábor Dobos and Réka Várnagy

6	Poland: Nationalization Despite Fear of Regionalization Wojciech Gagatsek and Michał Kotnarowski	129
7	Romania: Regional Persistence in a Highly Nationalized Party System Dragoș Dragoman and Bogdan Gheorghită	155
8	Russia: Nationalization Achieved Through Electoral and Institutional Engineering Derek S. Hutcheson and Arjan H. Schakel	177
9	Serbia and Montenegro. From Centralization to Secession and Multi-ethnic Regionalism Christina Isabel Zuber and Jelena Džankić	207
10	Slovakia: The Unbearable Lightness of Regionalization Marek Rybář and Peter Spáč	239
11	Turkey: Provincial Elections as a Barometer of National Politics Emanuele Massetti and Sait Aksit	261
12	Conclusion: Towards an Explanation of the Territoriality of the Vote in Eastern Europe Arjan H. Schakel	287
	Bibliography	327
	Index	357