

Contents

List of figures	vii
List of tables	xi
List of contributors	xiii
Acknowledgements	xvii
Introduction: listening to civility	1
PETER DENNEY, BRUCE BUCHAN, DAVID ELLISON, AND KAREN CRAWLEY
PART I
Sound, conversation and civility	13
1 John Locke on sound and conversation	15
RICHARD YEO
2 Awkward silences	28
JOHN BARRELL
PART II
Sonic spaces of civility and incivility	63
3 ‘The bell, like a speedy messenger, runs from house to house, and ear to ear’: the auditory markers of gender, politics and identity in England, 1500–1700	65
DOLLY MACKINNON
4 The buzz of business: soundscapes of urbanisation in eighteenth-century London	83
MARKMAN ELLIS

vi	Contents
5	Civil noise and its discontents DAVID ELLISON	106
PART III
	Sound, noise and the incivility of the crowd	121
6	The sound of the spirit: auditory enthusiasm and the attack on Methodism in the eighteenth century PETER DENNEY	123
7	Hissing the king: the politics of vocal expression in 1790s Britain GILLIAN RUSSELL	145
8	Laughed out of court: counter-theatre and participatory justice in the trials of William Hone KAREN CRAWLEY	164
9	Rioting and writing voice in Dickens's Barnaby Rudge HELEN GROTH	185
PART IV
	Civil and uncivil sounds of empire	203
10	The civil noise of empire BRUCE BUCHAN	205
11	The sounds of incivility: insults and abuse in early Sydney PENNY RUSSELL	226
	Afterword: useful echoes MARK M. SMITH	243
	Index	249