BRITISH LITERATURE IN TRANSITION, 1940–1960: POSTWAR

EDITED BY

GILL PLAIN

University of St Andrews

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

Contents

List of Contributors — page viii
General Editor's Preface — xiii
Acknowledgements — xvi

Introduction — 1
Gill Plain

PART I: AFTERMATH: THE BEGINNING OR THE END? — 31

1 Slender Means: The Novel in the Age of Austerity — 37
Marina MacKay

2 Impossible Elegies: Poetry in Transition 1940–1960 — 52
Nigel Alderman

3 Democracy, Decentralisation and Diversity: The Renaissance of British Theatre — 68
Rebecca D'Monté

4 National Transitions: Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland — 85
Katie Gramich

5 Heroes of Austerity: Genre in Transition — 101
Gill Plain

6 Wireless Writing, the Second World War and the West Indian Literary Imagination — 117
James Procter

PART II: THE POLITICS OF TRANSITION — 137

7 Narrating Transitions to Peace: Fiction and Film after War — 143
Mark Rawlinson

8 Poetry, the Early Cold War and the Idea of Europe 161
Adam Piette

9 Horizon, Encounter and Mid-Century Geopolitics 176
Thomas S. Davis

10 Public Intellectuals and the Politics of Literature: The Causes and Collaborations of J. B. Priestley and Jacquetta Hawkes Priestley 192
Ina Habermann

11 Prizing the Nation: Postwar Children's Fiction 209
Lucy Pearson

12 Artists of Their Time: The Postwar Battle for Realism in Literature and Painting 225
Alice Ferrebe

PART III: RECONFIGURATIONS 243

13 Demob: The Postwar Origins of the New Nature Writing 249
Leo Mellor

14 Old Haunts: Childhood and Home in Postwar Fiction 267
Victoria Stewart

15 New Uses of Literacy: The Blank Page and Writing in the Aftermath of War 282
Tracy Hargreaves

16 The Pursuit of Love: Writing Postwar Desire 297
Charlotte Charteris

17 Creating Vital Theatre: New Voices in a Time of Transition 313
Claire Cochrane

PART IV: NO DIRECTIONS 331

18 Covert Legacies in Postwar British Fiction 337
James Smith

19 'The Sights are Worse than the Journeys': Travel Writing at the Mid-Century 353
Petra Rau

20 The Future and the End: Imagining Catastrophe in Mid-Century British Fiction 369
Allan Hepburn

21 Exhausted Literature: The Postwar Novel in Repose 385
Kate McLoughlin

Index 400