

Contents

List of Illustrations	x
Acknowledgements	xii
PART I SETTING THE SCENE
1. Introduction	3
Defining film noir	4
Corpus	5
French and American film noir: historical links	6
Sociological theory	7
Constructivism and psychoanalysis	8
Biocultural approaches	9
Evolutionary psychology	10
The biocultural turn in evolutionary science	12
A biocultural approach to gender: similarity and difference	14
The cinema of fatal desire	16
2. Fatal(e) Desire in French Poetic Realism	18
Introduction: poetic realism as proto-noir	18
Gendered figures in poetic realism	19
Star-crossed lovers: the tragic hero and French fatale as fatalitaire	20
Conclusion	27
PART II THE LONG SHADOW OF WAR
3. Looking for the Light	31
Introduction: invasion, occupation, collaboration	31
A cinema of paradox	32
Les Années noires and crime drama	33
Liberation crime drama and the myth of the Resistance	40

Classic French Noir

Le réalisme noir and flawed masculinity	41
Conclusion	49
4. Too Many Women? War and Fatal(e) Desire	50
Introduction	50
Classic American femme fatale as spider woman	51
French fatale: 'Cherchez la femme'	53
War, demographics and assertive femininity: sex ratio theory	59
Conclusion	67
PART III CHERCHEZ LA FEMME
5. Fatal(e) Passions: Tragic Fatalitaires and Star-Crossed Lovers	71
Introduction: passionate love as universal human adaptation	71
Love styles	73
Star-crossed lovers	74
Male sexual jealousy	79
Simone Signoret as modern girl and prostitute fatalitaire	80
Femininity as masquerade?	83
Evil pimps	85
Race, class and gender in J'irai cracher sur vos tombes [ I will Spit on your Graves ] (Gast, 1959)	86
Conclusion	93
6. 'Thou Shalt Not Covet': Adulterous Fatalitaires	94
Introduction: what do women want?	94
Le dernier tournant [The Last Turn] (Chenal, 1939)	96
The Postman Always Rings Twice (Garnett, USA, 1946)	97
From fatalitaire to femme fatale	99
Thérèse Raquin [The Adulteress] (Carné, France/ Italy, 1953)	104
Ascenseur pour l'échafaud [ Lift to The Scaffold ] (Malle, 1958)	106
Conclusion	111

Contents

7. Bad Girls	113
Introduction: the bad-girl fatale as archetypal unruly woman	113
The unruly femme and male paranoia	114
What does the femme want?	116
Demonic fatale as amoureuse	117
The long shadow of war	119
The unglamorous fatale as camouflage	120
Paranoia, lethal femme power and risk	122
Woman as spectacle and exchange object	128
The femme as avenging angel	132
Conclusion: from spectacle to subjectivity	134

PART IV CERCHEZ L'HOMME

8. Fatal Men	139
Introduction	139
L'homme fatal	140
Bonnes à tuer [ One Step to Eternity ] (Decoin, 1954)	140
Une Manche et la Belle [ A Kiss For A Killer ] (Verneuil, 1957)	148
La Bête à L'Affût [ Beast at Bay ] (Chenal, 1959): after Forests of the Night (Keene, 1956)	155
Conclusion	160
9. Law Enforcers Meet the Femme	162
Introduction	162
Honourable cops and shady dames	163
Cops and robbers: blurred boundaries	165
Investigating the femme	169
En cas de Malheur [ Love is my Profession ] (Autant-Lara, France/Italy, 1956)	172
From protection to violent surveillance: the bodyguard hypothesis	176
Bardot as new fatalitaire	180
Conclusion	181

10. Love and Money: Gender and Consumption in Gangster Noir	183
Introduction	183
Urban spaces of conspicuous consumption	184
Conspicuous consumption, honour and hyper-masculinity	186
Reconfiguring left-handed endeavour as collaborative labour	187
Females in (gangster) noir: insatiable consumers	189
Domestic spaces: tradition vs modernity	192
Iconic objects of conspicuous consumption: the ultimate consumer durable	195
Rififi : questioning gangster culture	198
Du rififi chez les femmes : the first French noir action babe	201
Conclusion	203

PART V CONCLUSIONS

Classic French Noir: The Dark Side of ‘Quality’ Cinema (1946–59)	207
Gender and power in classic French noir	209
Noir as sociohistorically inflected dramas of mate selection	210
French fatal e as romantic fatalitaire	211
French noir as an evolving constant	212
Directions for future research	213

APPENDICES

Appendix 1: 101 French Films Noirs	217
Filmography layout	217
1930s: poetic realism/early noir (18)	217
1941–4 Occupation noir (8)	218
1946–59 Classic French noir (75)	219
Appendix 2: Tables	223

Notes	226
Bibliography	247
Index	261