

Contents

Introduction ☆ 9

Part One: Repression

- 1. Eastern Europe after World War II ☆ 23
The Pre-War Regimes ☆ The Communist Parties at the Close of the War ☆ The Revolutionary Wave and the 'People's Governments' ☆ The Warsaw Uprising ☆ Revolution from Above ☆ The Fate of Peasant and Socialist Parties ☆ The Growth of the Communist Parties ☆ Slav against Teuton ☆ Nationalization ☆ The Prague Coup – Workers' Uprising?
- 2. The Russian Interest ☆ 49
Reparations ☆ Mixed Companies ☆ Trade ☆ Conclusion
- 3. From Control to Subjection ☆ 56
The Purges ☆ Economic Changes ☆ The Pattern of Economic Development ☆ 1952 or 1984?

Part Two: Revolt and Revolution

- 4. 1953: The German Workers' Revolt ☆ 69
The Uprising ☆ The Real Causes ☆ The Bureaucracy Split
- 5. 1953-56 Prelude to Revolution ☆ 86
The Hungarian 'New Course' ☆ The Twentieth Congress
- 6. 1956: Poland – Aborted Revolution ☆ 94
Intellectuals in Revolt ☆ Insurrection Below ☆ Reforms ☆ Gomulka versus the Left ☆ The October Left ☆ The Fight for Control ☆ Workers' Councils ☆ Strike and Repression

1956: The Hungarian Revolution ☆ 124

The Revolution Breaks ☆ The New Government ☆ The Emergence of Workers' Councils ☆ Revolution or Counter-Revolution? ☆ Class Forces in the Hungarian Revolution ☆ Mass Insurgency ☆ Dual Power ☆ Concessions . . . ☆ Betrayal ☆ The Counter-Revolution ☆ The Second Period of Dual Power ☆ The Destruction of the Workers' Councils ☆ Conclusion

1968: Czechoslovakia – Arrested Reform ☆ 188

Origins of the Crisis ☆ Novotny's Fall ☆ The New Leadership ☆ The Reformers and the Invasion ☆ 'Normalization' ☆ Slovakia ☆ The Intellectuals ☆ Ideological Confusion ☆ The Workers ☆ Democratization within the Unions ☆ Resistance to 'Normalization' ☆ The Workers' Councils ☆ Conclusion

1970: Poland ☆ 242

The Economy ☆ Gdansk

Conclusion: Reform or Revolution ☆ 254

Economic Malaise ☆ Waste and Competition ☆ A Vicious Circle ☆ The Crisis ☆ The Failure of Reform ☆ Revolution

Notes ☆ 273

Index ☆ 290