

Contents

Introduction	7
I. The Role of the Media in Conflicts
Chapter 1
Heikki Luostarinen Propaganda Analysis	17
Chapter 2
Heikki Luostarinen & Rune Ottosen The Changing Role of the Media in Conflicts. From the Cold War to the Net Age	39
Chapter 3
Wilhelm Kempf Conflict Coverage and Conflict Escalation	59
Chapter 4
Oddgeir Tveiten TV Wars, the Audience and the Public	73
II. How Did We Get Here?
Chapter 5
Heikki Luostarinen Propaganda and Reporting in Total Wars	89
Chapter 6
Heikki Luostarinen The US Media and the Vietnam War. Sparks for a Fire	101
Chapter 7
Heikki Luostarinen & Rune Ottosen Propaganda and War Reporting after the Vietnam War	113

III. Methodological Approaches

Chapter 8

Oddgeir Tveiten & Stig A. Nøbrstedt

News, Discourse, Rhetoric, Propaganda.

Conflict Journalism from a Multi-Methodological Perspective

131

Chapter 9

Wilhelm Kempf

Integration of Quantitative and Qualitative Content

Analysis in Media Research

145

Chapter 10

Michael Reimann

Communication Disorders in Conflict Coverage

173

IV. Studies on the Gulf War and the Bosnia Conflict

Chapter 11

Stig A. Nøbrstedt

Images of the UN in Dagens Nyheter and the Washington Post
during the Gulf War 1990–91

185

Chapter 12

Wilhelm Kempf & Michael Reimann

The Presentation of Alternative Ways of Settling the Gulf Conflict in German, Norwegian and Finnish Media

203

Chapter 13

Wilhelm Kempf

Escalating and Deescalating Aspects in the Coverage of the Bosnia Conflict.
A Comparative Study

227

V. Beyond Wishful Thinking

Chapter 14

Joban Galtung

Peace Journalism – A Challenge

259

Chapter 15

Heikki Luostarinen

Journalism and Cultural Preconditions of War

273

References

285

About the Authors

295