

Contents

Introduction to the Series vii

Preface ix

- 1 The Shaping of Contemporary Political Ideas 1
- 2 Mainstream Ideas in Britain 4
 - The origins and nature of English parties 4
 - Democratic Socialism: the context 5
 - Labour Party doctrine 7
 - Is the Labour Party really socialist? 13
 - Conservatism as a negative doctrine 15
 - The positive features of Conservatism 16
 - Is Conservatism an ideology? 20
 - Liberalism 22
- 3 Ideological Panaceas 26
 - What is ideology? 26
 - Communism: the framework 27
 - The Communist theory of class conflict 29
 - The Party 32
 - The Red Revolution 34
 - Social reform 36
 - The condition of Communism today 37
 - The New Left 39
 - Racialism 43
 - Technocracy 51
- 4 Organisation within the Political Unit 55
 - The distribution of power 55
 - Anarchism 55

Totalitarianism	60
The nature of democracy	67
Freedom	68
Equality	70
Participation	73
Place of strife	77
Democracy today	78
5 Organisation of the Political Unit	80
The problem of identification	80
The origins and strength of nationalism	81
The aims of nationalism	85
The paradoxes of nationalism	92
The fallacy of nationalism	94
Provincialism	95
Supranationalism	98
6 The Nature and Importance of Political Ideas	103
What is the good of political theory?	103
The end of ideology debate	105
Political socialisation	107
How to decide	110
Notes and References	113
Select Bibliography	120
Index	125