

Contents

Acknowledgments	vii
Introduction	1
1 The sociology of art and the sociology of knowledge	3
2 The constitution of knowledge	11
i The phenomenology of knowledge and the social construction of the world	12
ii Language and knowledge of the world	19
iii Knowledge and interest—ideology	32
3 The problems of the sociology of knowledge	38
i Relativity and the problem of objective knowledge	39
ii Knowledge and reality	43
iii Cross-cultural understanding	45
iv The levels and varieties of knowledge	46
v Structure and the individual	49
vi The concept of a world-view	51
vii Epistemology and ontology	51
4 The sociology of art and the concept of a world-view	53
i The concept of a world-view	56
ii Metalinguistics and the concept of world-view	61
5 Concepts of collective consciousness	65
i Lévi-Strauss	66
ii Goldmann	79
	v

CONTENTS

6	Concepts of collective consciousness (continued)	89
	iii Durkheim	89
	iv Parsons	93
7	Hermeneutic philosophy and the sociology of knowledge	102
8	Conclusion: towards a hermeneutic sociology of art	129
	Bibliography	139
	Index	147