

CONTENTS

Part I. Introduction	1
1 Shakespeare Relocated: Studies in Historical Psychology	3
Part II. Historical Psychology Versus “Literary” Criticism	11
2 “New Criticism” as a Humanist Fallacy	13
3 Personal Identity and Literary Personae	35
4 Shakespeare and “Globe”-alization	59
5 Shakespeare and Prehistory	73
6 Richard III and the Reformation	81
Part III. How to Write A Renaissance Play	93
7 Amatory Magnetism: Shakespeare’s Algorithm	95
8 Feminist and Gay Readings of Shakespeare Performances	101
9 The Triple Bond: Cinthio, Lope de Vega, and Shakespeare	109
10 Romeo and Juliet and Lope de Vega’s Castelwines y Monteses	121

Part IV. Comical-Historical	139
11 Shakespeare's Navarre	141
12 Comical Historical: Literary History Beyond Historicism	167
13 Shakespeare's Anti-Reformation Comedies	179
14 Ethnic Conflict in Much Ado	187
15 Much Ado in Context	193
Part V. "Reformed" Love Poetry	209
16 The Dark Lady as Reformation Mistress	211
17 Shakespeare's Emilias	229
18 Aretino Bettered: Shakespeare's Sonnet 130	235
19 Donne's Master: The Young Shakespeare	239
20 Proto-Feminism: Seductions in Shakespeare and Milton	259
Part VI. Tragedy Transcended	273
21 "To be or not to be ..." Reinterpreted	275
22 Iago as Director	279
23 Enjoying King Lear	295
Index	299