

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements .....	9
List of Abbreviations used in Book .....	11
Introduction .....	13
Nation and Narration.....	14
Postcolonial Departures from Traditions of Genre .....	25
Chapter I: Representation of Trauma in Two Selected Bildungsromane: Gail Jones' Sorry (2008) and Rachel Zadok's Gem Squash Tokoloshe (2005) .....	29
The Traditions of the Bildungsroman .....	29
Postcolonial Bildungsroman .....	33
A Reading of Sorry .....	41
A Reading of Gem Squash Tokoloshe .....	51
Rape in Sorry and Gem Squash Tokoloshe .....	63
Conclusion .....	70
Chapter II: Postcolonial Pastoral: David Malouf's Remembering Babylon (1993) and Lisa Fugard's Skinner's Drift (2005) .....	73
Pastoral Traditions .....	73
Postcolonial Pastoral.....	77
A Reading of Remembering Babylon .....	90
A Reading of Skinner's Drift .....	110
Conclusion .....	129

Chapter III: Making Use of History in Kate Grenville's The Secret River (2005) and Zoë Wicomb's David's Story (2001) .....	131
The Historical Novel – Possibilities and Dynamics .....	131
Histories Within Postcolonial Fiction .....	133
A Reading of The Secret River .....	147
A Reading of David's Story .....	173
Conclusion .....	199
Conclusion .....	201
Bibliography .....	207
Index .....	249