Contents

0. Introduction 1

I. Basic Concepts 3

1. Neologism 3
1.1. Definition 3
1.2. Word Coining as Language Change 6
1.3. Documenting Neologisms 8
1.4. New-Word Typologies 10

2. Motivation 11

3. Lexical Institutionalization 15

4. Productivity 17

5. Open Questions and Working Hypotheses 20

II. The Word-formation Types Shortening, Lexical Phrase and Combination 21

1. Introduction 21

2. Shortenings 25
2.1. Acronyms 26
2.1.1. Terminology and Definition 26
2.1.2. Structure of the Base Form 29
2.1.3. Motivation 30
2.1.3.1. Phonological and Graphic Motivation 30
2.1.3.2. Semantic, Stylistic, and Phonaesthetic Motivation 32
2.1.4. Productivity/Word-Formation on the Basis of Acronyms 34
2.2. Blends 34
2.2.1. Terminology and Definition 34
2.2.2. The Structure of the Base Form 35
2.2.3. Motivation 36
2.2.3.1. Phonological and Graphic Motivation 36
2.2.3.2. Morphological and Stylistic Motivation 38
2.2.4. Productivity/Word-Formation on the Basis of Blends 39

2.3. Clippings 39
2.3.1. Terminology and Definition 39
2.3.2. The Structure of the Base Form 41
2.3.3. Phonological, Graphic, and Morphological Motivation 42
2.3.4. Productivity/Word-Formation on the Basis of Clippings 43
3. Lexical Phrases 43
3.1. Definition of the Lexical Phrase and Related Concepts 43
3.2. The Study Sample 45
3.3. The Structure of the Lexical Phrase 46
3.4. Motivation 50
3.4.1. Phonological Motivation 51
3.4.2. Stylistic Motivation 51
3.4.3. Morphological, Syntactic, and Semantic Motivation 52
3.5. Productivity/Word-Formation on the Basis of Lexical Phrases..... 53
4. Combinations 55
4.1. A Definition of Terms 55
4.2. The Study Sample 57
4.3. The Typology of Combining Forms 58
4.4. Motivation 62
4.5. Productivity/Word-Formation on the Basis of Combining Forms.. 63
5. Summary 64

III. The Development of Selected Neologisms from The Guardian between the Years 1990-1996 in Comparison with The Miami Herald from 1992 68

1. The Language of the Press: Information on the Corpora Used 68
1.1. New Word-Formations in the Press 68
1.2. National British Daily Newspapers: Socio-economic and Stylistic Aspects 70
1.3. The Guardian and The Miami Herald on CD-ROM: Practical Aspects of Linguistic Work with a New Medium 72
1.4. The Selection of Lexemes 79

2. Shortenings 80
2.1. The Acronyms GUI, Midi, Risc, DAT, mips, ASCII, and OLE 80
2.1.1. GUI 81
2.1.2. Midi 82
2.1.3. Risc 85
2.1.4. DAT 87

2.1.5. The Older Acronyms mips and ASCII 90
2.1.6. The New Acronym OLE 93

2.2. The Blends sitcom, faction, and cyborg 94
2.2.1. sitcom 94
2.2.2. faction 98
2.2.3. cyborg 99
2.3. The Clippings drama-doc, techno, dino, cred, fab, brill, and rad 101
2.3.1. drama-doc 101
2.3.2. techno 103
2.3.3. dino 106
2.3.4. cred 110
2.3.5. fab, brill, and rad 113

3. The Lexical Phrases virtual reality, right-to-, rent-to-mortgage, mortgage-to-rent, red-eye (flight), and pay-per-view 119
3.1. virtual reality 119
3.2. right-to- 125
3.3. rent-to-mortgage and mortgage-to-rent 135
3.4. red-eye flight and red-eye 137
3.5. pay-per-view 138

4. Combinations with cyber-, techno-, info-, docu-, -tainment, and -umentary 141
4.1. cyber- 141
4.2. techno- 148
4.3. info- 153
4.4. docu- 159
4.5. –tainment and –umentary 161
4.6. The Productivity of the Combining Forms 163

IV. Results 171

V. Appendix: Word Lists 183

VI. References 199