

CONTENTS

Preface	1
Introduction	3

Part One: Theory and Dramas of the Fifties

I. Hacks' Dramatic Theories during the Fifties: Innovation and the Reaction of the East German Cultural Functionaries
A. "Enfant Terrible" or Fellow Traveller?	9
B. Three Theoretical Notions	20
II. Hacks' Early "Realistic Play" Eröffnung des indischen Zeitalters : Dogmatic Reflections on History
A. Why a Marxist Historical Interpretation of Columbus' Voyage to America?	37
B. Plot	40
C. Character Treatment	46
D. Language	49
III. Die Sorgen und die Macht : Evolution from the "Realistic" to the "Classical" Play
A. The Cultural Functionaries' Reaction	51
B. The Play	59

Part Two: Theory and Dramas of the Sixties and Seventies

IV. Hacks' Dramatic Theories during the Sixties and Seventies: Adaption, Innovation, and Acceptance
A. Utopia Viewed as Achievable Reality: Hacks' Relationship to the Cultural Functionaries	79
B. Three Theoretical Notions	91

V. Hacks' "Bearbeitung" Der Frieden : Evolution, Definition, Transition
A. Why a "Bearbeitung" of Aristophanes' Peace ?	120
B. Plot	122
C. Character Treatment	139
D. Language	148
VI. Hacks' "Classical Play" Omphale : Evolution and Definition
A. Why a "Bearbeitung" of Myth?	153
B. Plot	154
C. Character Treatment	164
D. Language	168
Conclusion	171
Bibliography	174