

CONTENTS

1	Introduction	1
	Engaging the Romantic Occult	2
	Critical Limits	5
	The 1790s Occult: Historical and Literary Contours	11
2	A Profile of Romantic-Period Popular Magic: Taxonomies of Evidence	17
	First-Hand Experiences of Popular Magic: The Paucity of Evidence	25
	Case Study 1: Writing Cunning Men	32
	Case Study 2: Didacticism – Educating Readers Out of Superstition	42
	Case Study 3: Starry Sedition and The Conjuror’s Magazine	54
3	Adjacent Cultures and Political Jugglery	81
	The Proximity of Popular Prophecy	86
	Astrology and Political Prognostication	90
	Discourses of the Revolution Controversy	92
4	John Thelwall’s Autobiographical Occult	109
	Geographies of Difference	111
	Occult Oration	120
	Enchanted Spaces	124

5	Lyrical Ballads and Occult Identities	131
	Lyrical Ballads 1798: A Grimoire	133
	'The Thorn': Gossip and the Literary Marketplace	140
	Forsaken Indian/British Women	143
	'The Complaint of a Forsaken Indian Women': A Spell Poem
	Manqué	145
	'The Mad Mother': Transatlantic Negotiations of Popular Magic	152
6	Coleridge and Curse	165
	Bristol's Radical Circles: Prophets, Astrologers and
	Revolutionaries	166
	'The Three Graves' and Wordsworthian Inheritances	172
	'The Three Graves' and 'Christabel': Coleridge's Enslaving
	Superstition	177
	The Rime of the Ancient Mariner: Wordsworthian Genetics	189
	A Platform for Debate	193
	The Quarto: Recantation	201
7	Robert Southey's Conservative Occult	215
	'We Were Altogether Displeased': Southey's Response to Lyrical
	Ballads	216
	Problematizing 'The Witch'	223
	Imposed Occult Identities: 'The Cross-Roads' and 'The Mad
	Woman'	227
	'The Ballad of a Ballad-Maker': Southey's Remedial Rewritings
	of 'The Ancient Mariner'	232
	Southey's Orientalism: Thalaba the Destroyer	235
8	Conclusion	263
	Bibliography	273
	Index	299