

Contents

Biographical Notes	7
Foreword.....	11
Section 1: The phonology – phonetics interface
Bartłomiej Czaplicki
Phonetic basis of phonological representations: Evidence from expressive morphology in Polish	19
Guillaume Enguehard
Typology of stress realizations and CVCV representation	35
Haike Jacobs, Joop Kerkhoff and Alexander Greefhorst
Consonant duration and degemination in Dutch: at the interface of phonetics and phonology	63
Mayuki Matsui
Phonological symmetry, phonetic asymmetry, and the acoustic consequences of voicing in Russian	83
Geoffrey Schwartz
Representing non-neutralization in Polish sandhi -voicing	103
Péter Szigetvári
No diphthong, no problem.....	123
Section 2: The phonology – morphosyntax interface
Jieun Bark
Space matters: using word boundaries	145
Karolina Bros
Between phonology and morphosyntax: voicing and spirantization in the Spanish of Gran Canaria	173

Kamil Kaźmierski The reduction of intervocalic /w/ in Polish.....	201
Raquel Santana Santos Stress shift across empty categories in Brazilian Portuguese: Experimental results	219
Section 3: Phonology and the lexicon
Krzysztof Jaskuła Phonotactic adaptation of English loanwords in Hawaiian – a Government Phonology approach to consonant cluster decomposition.....	243
Marek Radomski and Kateryna Sydorenko Consonant deletion in online adaptation of Polish and Ukrainian consonant clusters by native speakers of English.....	261
Jolanta Szpyra-Kozłowska and Marek Radomski English ash in loanwords into Polish. Factors behind two patterns of adaptation	277