

PASSING FANCIES IN JEWISH AMERICAN LITERATURE AND CULTURE

Judith Ruderman

Indiana University Press

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
1 Jews and Their Complex Identities: “O Brave New World, That Has Such People In’t!”	1
2 The “Jewish Nose” and the Nose Job in Nathan Englander’s The Ministry of Special Cases : “The Most Unkindest Cut of All”	20
3 Jewish American Women and the Nose Job: “God Hath Given You One Face, and You Make Yourself Another”	39
4 Renaming as a Strategy for Passing in Thyra Samter Winslow’s “A Cycle of Manhattan”: “A Ros[s] by Any Other Name”	69
5 Renaming and Reclaiming: “To Thine Own Self Be True”	85
6 Jews and Gentiles Becoming the Other: “Neither a Borrower nor a Lender Be”	107
7 Racial Crossings between Jews and Blacks: “That You Might See Your Shadow”	132
8 The Use of Clothing in Jewish Passing Narratives: “The Fashion Wears Out More Apparel Than the Man”	166
9 In Search of an “Authentic” Jewish American Identity: “Who Is It Who Can Tell Me Who I Am?”	198
Bibliography	223
Index	237