

CONTENTS

List of Tables	vii
List of Figures	viii
Preface	ix
Chapter 1 The Pervasiveness of Policy Succession	1
1.1 The growing importance of policy succession; 1.2 Outcomes of the policy cycle; 1.3 Policy, program and organizational succession; 1.4 The dynamics of policy change
Chapter 2 Types of Policy Change	25
2.1 All policy is policy change; 2.2 Types of policy change; 2.3 The dimensions of policy change; 2.4 Analyzing issues in terms of types of policy change; Appendix: The algebra of policy change
Chapter 3 Types of Policy Succession	61
3.1 Distinguishing types of policy succession; 3.2 Linear suc- cession; 3.3 Policy consolidation; 3.4 Policy splitting; 3.5 Partial termination; 3.6 Non-linear succession; 3.7 Incidental policy succession; 3.8 Complex patterns of policy succession; 3.9 Policy residues; 3.10 Using the classifi- cation of policy succession types
Chapter 4 Indicators of Policy Change	85
4.1 Measurement; 4.2 Organizations as indicators; 4.3 Laws as indicators; 4.4 Using indicators of policy change
Chapter 5 The Policy Succession Process	107
5.1 Policy succession as process; 5.2 Agenda-setting for policy succession; 5.3 Making policy choices; 5.4 Implementing policy succession; 5.5 Outcomes and evaluation; 5.6 How succession differs from innovation
Chapter 6 The Organizational Setting of Policy Succession	137
6.1 Change organizations to change policy? 6.2 The bureauc- ratic politics of policy succession; 6.3 Personnel barriers to policy succession in organizations; 6.4 Organizational barriers to policy succession; 6.5 Organizational costs; 6.6 Interorganizational change as an alternative to intra-organizational change; 6.7 Summary

Chapter 7 Changing Delivery Systems	165
7.1 Interest in changing delivery systems; 7.2 Transition between forms of policy output; 7.3 Allocative mechanisms in the public and private sectors; 7.4 Policy change and 'stock' and 'flow'; 7.5 Complex delivery systems; 7.6 Assumptions and issues in the transition debate; 7.7 The politics of changing delivery systems
Chapter 8 Conclusion: Strategic Choice for Policy Succession	221
8.1 Policy succession as a focus for analysis and action; 8.2 Current cycle; 8.3 Future cycle; 8.4 Problem-solving or problem-causing?
References	267
Index	281