

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments xi

Preface xiii

1. Character of the Age 1

The State of Society 4

The State of the Human Mind 8

PART I. EMOTIONAL ATTITUDES

2. Optimism 27

Reconstruction and History: the Revival of Hope 27

Two Utopias of Science: Great Expectations 33

Applied Science and Bigger Business: Pride and Complacency 38

Liberation from the Burdens of the Past: Relief and Joy 45

3. Anxiety 54

Fear of Revolution 54

The Danger of Atheism 58

Worry and Fatigue 60

The Strain of Puritanism 61

Ennui and Doubt 64

Isolation, Loneliness, and Nostalgia 77

PART II. INTELLECTUAL ATTITUDES

4. The Critical Spirit—and the Will to Believe 93

Rise of the Critical Spirit 94

The Will to Believe 96

Recoil to Authority	99
Reliance on Authority	102
Tension	106
5. Anti-Intellectualism	110
Business	111
Democracy, Evangelicalism, and Doubt	124
6. Dogmatism	137
Opportunity for the Ego	138
The Rationale of Infallibility	144
The Attraction of Dogmatism	154
7. Rigidity	161
Sectarian Fervor	162
Puritan Judgment	171
The Need for Rigidity	173
The Open and Flexible Mind	176

PART III. MORAL ATTITUDES

8. The Commercial Spirit	183
Respectability	184
The Bourgeois Dream	189
Success	191
9. The Worship of Force	196
Machines and Men	198
The Squirearchy	201
The Major Prophet	206
Darwinism, Chauvinism, Racism	209
Puritanism	213
Disillusion	216
10. Earnestness	218
Intellectual Earnestness	222
Moral Earnestness and the Religious Crisis	228

Moral Earnestness and the Social Crisis	239
Work	242
XI. Enthusiasm	263
Idealism and the Education of the Feelings	267
Sympathy and Benevolence	273
Nobility	281
Self-Development	287
Aspiration without an Object	291
Moral Optimism	297
XII. Hero Worship	305
Messiah	310
Revelation	314
Moral Inspiration	316
Patriotism	324
Politics	325
Compensation	331
XIII. Love	341
Home, Sweet Home	341
Woman	348
Sex	353
Love	372
XIV. Hypocrisy	394
Conformity	395
Moral Pretension	404
Evasion	413
Anti-Hypocrisy	424
Bibliography	431
Index	445