

Table of contents

List of figures	9
List of tables	11
List of abbreviations	15
1 Introduction	17
1.1 U.S.-German relations in the post-Cold War era from a citizen perspective	17
1.2 Core postures, parties, and U.S.-German relations: A model and some expectations	20
1.3 Data and outline of the book	38
2 Change and stability of U.S. and German foreign and security policy attitudes	42
2.1 Introduction	42
2.2 Foreign policy postures	44
2.2.1 Introduction	44
2.2.2 Internationalism	45
2.2.3 Militarism	48
2.2.4 Multilateralism	54
2.3 Perceptions of the international system	59
2.3.1 Introduction	59
2.3.2 Foreign policy problems facing the country	60
2.3.3 International threat perceptions	64
2.3.4 Attitudes toward foreign countries, their leaders, and transatlantic relations	71
2.4 Policies	79
2.4.1 Introduction	79
2.4.2 Providing collective security: NATO, EU, or both?	80
2.4.3 War and military interventions	90

Table of contents

2.4.4 International terrorism	109
2.4.5 Nuclear proliferation	113
2.5 Summary and implications	119
3 Policy postures and elite politics as determinants of public opinion	124
3.1 Introduction	124
3.2 Data, measurement, and methods	131
3.3 Explaining foreign and security policy attitudes	138
3.3.1 The Kosovo War	138
3.3.2 International terrorism	147
3.3.3 The Afghanistan War	154
3.3.4 The Iraq War	163
3.3.5 The Iranian nuclear program	177
3.3.6 NATO	183
3.3.7 Transatlantic relations	199
3.4 Summary and implications	222
4 Conclusion	226
References	239
Appendix A: Data sets	255
Appendix B1: Question wording for figures	259
Appendix B2: Question wording for tables	269
Appendix B3: Question wording for results reported in the text only	285