

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

Introduction: A Literary Jurisprudence of Entanglement — 1

Unsettled spaces in the Diasporic lawscape — 1

Methodology — 8

1 Zero City — 12

1.1 Chaos and chora — 12

1.2 Ambivalent belonging in David Morley and Cecilia Woloch — 16

1.3 Sovereignty, space and the chora in “Kings” by David Morley — 28

1.4 Control and contamination in Mariella Mehr’s Stoneage — 40

1.5 Plasticity in Louise Doughty’s Fires in the Dark — 65

2 The Sedentary Order — 73

2.1 Nomadic lex specialis: from dale farm to detention — 73

2.2 Mogoş v. Romania and the poetry of Mariella Mehr — 84

2.3 Moving through the lawscape in John F. McDonald’s Tribe — 96

2.4 Trespassing in the city with Django Reinhardt — 104

2.5 Nomads, outlaws and frontiers in Ronald Lee’s The Living Fire — 117

3 Diaspora Space — 128

3.1 Property, possession, and proper use of space — 128

3.2 Autobiographical tales of uncanny space and unsettled encounters — 135

3.3 Alina Serban speaking (of) and spacing “home” — 147

3.4 Alienation and enclosure in Louise Doughty’s Stone Cradle — 159

3.5 Romani poetry and the arrivant — 169

Conclusion — 180

Bibliography — 191

Cases cited — 216

Legislation cited — 217

Index — 218