

Contents

---

System of Transliteration	xi
Notes on the Text	xiii
Definitions of Terms	xiii
Primary Source Authors in Chronological Order	xiv
Modern and Contemporary Muslim Authors That Appear in the Study	xvii
Acknowledgments	xix
Chapter One: Introduction	1
Traditional Muslim Approach to Maghāzī and Futūḥ : Essential Background	1
Research Rationale	5
The Research Problem	8
Central Phrase of the Research: Religious Motivation	8
Demarcations of the Research	9
Research Plan, Structure, and Outline	10
Sources and Source Problems: The Crisis of Islamic Studies	11
Research Methodology	12
The Qur’ān	12
The Historical Accounts	13
Notes	14
Works Cited	20

Chapter Two: Review of Precedent Literature	24
Muslim and Non-Muslim Approaches to the Muslim Sources	25
The Qur'ān	26
Historical Writings: Rise and Development Among the Muslims	28
Source Problems in the Historical Writings: The Crisis of Islamic Studies	30
Arabic Primary Sources Used in This Study: A Survey	33
Muhammad's Life and Raids: Sīra and Maghāzī	34
Early Muslim Conquests: Futūḥ Literature	36
Early Muslim Histories: Ta'rikh Literature	38
More Early Muslim Sources	40
Motivations for the Conquests in the Secondary Literature	41
Conclusion	43
Notes	44
Works Cited	57
 Chapter Three: Muhammad's Maghāzī and Their Stated Motivations:
A Critical Revision of Sīrat Rasūl Allāh	66
Traditional Muslim Approach to Muhammad's Maghāzī	67
Muhammad's Raids After the Hijra and Before Badr	69
The Battle of Badr	73
The Battle of Uḥud	80
The Conquest of Mecca	85
Political Situation Between Uḥud and fath Mecca	86
Banū al-Naḍīr	87
The Battle of the Trench	90
Banū Qurayṣa	92
The Raid to Khaybar and Fadak	94
Fath Mecca	96
Conclusion	98
Notes	100
Works Cited	119
 Chapter Four: The Stated Motivations for the Early Futūḥ : From Maghāzī to Futūḥ Through the Ridda Wars: A Critical Revision	126
Precursors of the Early Arab Conquests	127
The Appointment of Abū Bakr at the Saqīfa of Banū Sā'ida	127
The Ridda Wars	130
Usāma's Expedition to Syria	139
Khālid's Expedition to Iraq	141
The Conquest of Syria	144
Al-Azdī al-Baṣrī (d. ca. 165/781)	145

Al-Wāqidī (d. ca. 207/823)	146
Al-Balādhurī (d. ca. 279/892)	148
Al-Yaʿqūbī (d. 248/897) and al-Ṭabarī (d. 310/923)	149
Critical Observations on the Motivations for Futūḥ al-Shām	150
The Stated Motivation of Abū Bakr	151
The Possible Violation of the Qurʾān	152
The Reported Deeds of Some Commanders	154
The Three Options Given to the Conquered People	155
The Apparent Conspiracy Behind Abū Bakr’s Death and Burial	156
The Conquest of Egypt	157
Ibn ʿAbd al-Ḥakam (d. 257/871)	157
Al-Balādhurī (d. ca. 279/892)	159
Al-Yaʿqūbī (d. 248/897)	160
Al-Ṭabarī (d. 310/923)	161
Critical Observations on the Motivations for Fath Miṣr	162
Conclusion	165
Notes	166
Works Cited	190
Chapter Five: Jihad and Qitāl as the Qurʾān Sees Them:
Exegeting Islam’s Scripture	197
Exegeting Islam’s Scripture: Jihad and Qitāl in the Qurʾān	199
The Qurʾān on Confrontation with Non-Muslims	199
Jihad and Qitāl in the Qurʾān	201
Kāfirūn and Kuffār	204
Ahl al-kitāb	206
Alladhīn ūtū al-kitāb	208
Fī sabīl Allāh	211
Exegeting the Qurʾān: How Does It All Fit Together?	212
Muslim Mufasssirūn on Jihad and Qitāl in the Qurʾān: An Analysis	213
Six Muslim Mufasssirūn	213
Fight in Self-Defense and Do Not Attack: Is the Qurʾān Sufficient?	214
No Compulsion in Religion: Yes, but When and How?	216
Fight Them Until There Is No Opposition	218
Fight the People of the Book	220
No Fighting: You Have Your Religion, and I Have Mine	221
Conclusion: The Conflict Between the Qurʾān and Its Commentators	223
Notes	223
Works Cited	232
Chapter Six: Conclusion	236